

Blood Is The Same Color As Autumn

nd where should we start, he asked of me. And I answered him that time will offer us a beginning, just as time will offer us an end. And he asked what our responsibility is to this element of time; and I told him that our responsibility is only to be meaningful, in time. And he asked if that meant we should be remembered when we die—I answered that if we are truly meaningful we will only be remembered in the hearts of men.

So what is this passion of ours, and what is our responsibility? Can our passion and responsibility be channeled inward? I say no—Do we have to prove our responsibility to ourselves? Do we have to offer someone as a sacrifice to our god to prove that we are faithful—and did not god prove to Abraham that a loving god would never ask for human blood. And yet here we do not have a loving god; and he does ask for human blood: to appease his guilt for not loving. And are we to be accomplices to this crime?

And what of this society of ours that cries so painfully for leadership. Why is it that we resent the very persons that lead us. Why must we sacrifice our leaders only because they risk exposing our faults?

So here we are, casting our stones inward, trying to single out the one who shall fall—and I say no one must fall and none should cast stones—

The leaves are turning a more beautiful color, now that they are dying. But is this not our sole purpose: to be beautiful and then to die—for out of our death, leaves the chance for birth. And every birth is a resurrection of the fallen man.

And so when he asked me what I knew of death, I could only open his eyes to the autumn.

And he asked why we could not spend our life in fun, and I asked him if he could not have more fun making love. to people. And I asked him if a dance with meaning was not a better dance. But then we must understand that all our rituals have lost their meaning. They have been reduced to the plodding of feet in an aimless way.

And are we not all one great fraternity of men—can we not choose our mode of freedom and still stand together. Or must we huddle alone to cry our relevance. For it is only together that we can be truly relevant. And the people that gathered for the ritual of sacrifice must be taught that it is better to sacrifice the sacred calf than to sacrifice a human life—

He asked me again of death, and I could only say that I would have dandelions cast on my grave.

And he asked me of the dandelion weed that grows in the beautiful lawn. I answered that the yellow flower is beautiful in its own way; it adds to the beauty of the lawn through contrast—

This he could not understand, and I could only ask that he have faith in my answer.

Retraction

In the course of human events many mistakes are made. I will always be the first to admit when I have made a mistake. I must apologize to the fraternities for the statements I made last week. These statements were never meant to be destructive but rather as a constructive push. Knowing what it takes to move this greatly apathetic campus the statements were greatly overstated and poorly worded. To SAE and SAM, my apologies for accusing them of diverting library funds. To SAE, my apologies of accusing them of racial prejudice—it was later learned that no black rushed them last year. To TKE, my apologies to all the honest brothers that did work in the bookstore (I am surprised that the administration can waste their time on an audit that will reveal nothing when there are so many more obvious examples of mismanagement going unnoticed). I do hope that we can work together for the remainder of the year to make fraternities a more truly relevant faction on campus—

Crucifixion Lane

On Crucifixion Lane, the assembly of martyrs shift aimlessly. Robbed of their purpose. Robbed of their message. Here and there, saints march. When will we weep for their loss? How can we move without them?

Jack Hardy has lost his power. He has been stripped, temporarily or otherwise, from his position as Editor of the Liberated Press. Having committed the crime of responsibility. Slapped by the father-finger of tradition.

Such treatment is symptomatic. The disease colors the entire spectrum of society. Having refused to be silent, Jack Hardy was struck down. Crucified. Where is your pillar of justice?

Admittedly, I don't know. It is beyond our collective comprehension how such things continue to happen. We must re-orient our attitudes. Now that we know what we're up against. That which stands in our way.

We must become serious. We must compliment our words with action. Or else we will be robbed of every iota of strength we have. Action. Action.

We must drive this university to the wall. We must reveal their basic lies. The same lies that allow an innocent editor to be repressed. Forces of censorship bringing us down.

We must move. We must deal with truth. For we are being messed around. It is time we come to terms with these truths. For Hardy's censorship effects all of us. We must move to bring them to their knees. The paper belongs to students - not to moral impotents. And this is what they are. We must come together.

Getting Together

"Let me say, at the risk of seeming ridiculous, that the true revolutionary is guided by great feelings of love." — Ché

Again we tried. And again the haunting shadow of the money men perverted our message. They took hold of the confusion and brewed it until it became poison. They took our souls and led us to cannibalism. Brothers we're on the same side. No shit.

The "Liberated Press" is much more than a newspaper. Due to necessity we have assumed the role of teacher. "Liberal Arts", the broad background, education is bullshit. Every issue of the "Liberated Press" has been an attempt to offer the student body what political scientist C. Wright calls a "Liberating" education. A never ending process of self educating and self cultivating which results in a truly free individual.

If this university is to be democratic, if we the students that make up the university are to control it, we must be informed about what is going down all around us. The purpose of last week's attack on fraternities was not to expose any racketeering or to destroy fraternities. Only half of last week's "Liberated Press" came out last Wednesday. The other half of last week's paper was written by you. Reevaluation and response was the purpose of last week's paper. Its just too bad that such a vicious one sided attack was needed to strike a response.

The "Money Men" that run this institution of higher learning have siezed upon the poorly worded and purposefully sensationalized allegations made last week to suspend Jack as editor of the paper. We must not let them polarize this campus on false issues for their own benefit. We must accept the responsibility to educate ourselves as to the issues, however confusing, and reach our own rational conclusions. At least in our own university sub-culture let us practice the true democracy. Let us leave the administration sulking in its masturbatory propaganda.

Really, What Are We Doing Here, Or, You Can't Fuck Your Brother Shell

by Michelle Stern

That's how it is. Productivity is at a virtual, phenomenal standstill around here. I can't even offer a three step solution. I can't even fancy that the University is at the bottom of it. I've only the means to describe it.

Are we all assembled here eager to be educated? Or is an education an incidental by-product of our real purpose? Here on our isolated-by-choice campus we're all FREE to go barefoot, smoke dope, damn the "establishment" and regress to our childhood days when our main and only concern is with ourselves and our own personal gratification. Escape? It's four years of decadence, and all that time our only worries are, "How can I get out of writing a term paper for an English course I never wanted to take anyway?", or, "God, what have I done to my chromosomes?"

You may decide that the answer lies in becoming involved. So you sign your NAME to a piece of paper. Voila! You feel involved. But involvement entails work, and by now your mind is so atrophied that you're no longer capable of making even a single creative contribution and soon it becomes frighteningly obvious that the same thing has happened to everyone else. And there's no comfort in numbers. You're alone in a crowd.

We're all disgusted and nothing, Angelo, is happening. The stagnation is oozing from the piles of grey cinder-block and permeating the entire microcosm of the University. A solution seems so distant that it's non-existent, and there isn't even energy left to fight it.

You consider leaving because you feel useless and sorry for yourself—and trapped. But you CAN'T leave. It's physically and mentally impossible. Because you've been here a year or four years and you're addicted and you're waiting around for some wished-for-inspiration that will never come. Or maybe you've pondered over the alternatives. The projection is just as dismal. Because anywhere else you'll soon discover that you can't fuck your brother, Shell. You've got to stay.

Administration Creates Newspaper 'Crisis'

by HENRY MISHKOFF

The University of Hartford administration, demonstrating unusual creativity, has transformed a mildly serious campus problem into an apparent "crisis" situation. To press time, the events leading to this "crisis" went more or less as follows:

In the last issue (Sept. 24, 1969) of the U.H. News Liberated Press, the editor, Jack Hardy, made it quite clear, through several articles and editorials, that he strongly disapproved of the way fraternities operate on this campus. Needless to say, adverse reactions to the issue are expected from the fraternities, and these reactions materialized at the Student Senate meeting the following day. At this meeting, several fraternity members and other incensed persons appeared to air their views on Jack and his newspaper. These complaints were deferred to a Communications Commission meeting (the C.C. is the regulating body for all U.H. publications) scheduled for TODAY, October 1 (unless plans change, as they tend to do, be sure to attend this meeting).

Compared to the problems encountered by the paper last year, including the arrest of the editor and the attempted suspension of the paper by the Dean of Students, this current problem did not seem very serious, and it seemed as though the entire situation could be resolved without too much difficulty. It was only after the administration sensed that the students were about to solve their own problems that, in their usual half-assed manner, they decided that it was the right time for the invention of a crisis situation.

Early Thursday afternoon, a rumor reached the U. H. News office that

a) the newspapers that had been put in the mail the day before had been removed by Charlie Dwight, the UH Treasurer, without notifying Jack, and

b) there was to be a meeting about something concerning the newspaper (exactly what, nobody was sure) that evening, to which many student leaders had been invited, but of which, again, Jack had not been notified.

A quick visit to Mr. Dwight's office revealed that several items in the Liberated Press had been termed (on the advice of UH's lawyer Atwood Collins) "potentially libelous."

POTENTIALLY LIBELOUS??????

ANY charge against anyone is "Potentially libelous." The only time a problem arises is when the charges are unfounded and the maligned party decides to take legal action. Did Mr. Dwight have any reason to believe that the allegations were unfounded? No, he said. Did, then, he know of any planned legal action stemming from the allegations? Again, no. Then WHY did he incessantly refer to the paper as libelous?? The subject changed quickly. The purpose of the meeting that night was not, he said, to determine if any libel had occurred, but because the University was concerned that someone might sue the school for some future libel by the paper. Mr. Collins had informed them that this might be possible, and according to Mr. Dwight and later Dr. Komisar, the sole purpose of the meeting was going to be to discuss how the University could be protected from being sued for indiscretions by the newspaper.

Well, there was a meeting Thursday night officially an open meeting of the Faculty Senate. The purpose of the meeting, as best as this reporter could see, was to determine the purpose of the meeting. Various charges flew back and forth: Jack accused the administration of inconsistency, Dean Sweeney accused Jack of irresponsibility, NOBODY accused Jack of libel, Clement accused the administration of acting in bad faith in not allowing the Communications Commission to meet first, Angelo accused the University of racism "I don't take that charge lightly," said Dwight. "Well, I meant it heavily," said Angelo. The only decision reached was the long awaited decision to adjourn the meeting.

On Saturday afternoon, Sweeney notified Bill Clement, Communications Commission chairman, that he wanted to meet with the Com. Com. Sunday morning at 11:00 to discuss some mysteriously unspecified new developments. At the meeting, Sweeney and Professor Holder of the Business School, presented the "new development" -- an unsigned letter, noticeably not on official stationery, purportedly from Chancellor Woodruff. The Chancellor was writing from his hideout in New York to tell us that he had heard from Mr. Collins that due to Jack's "irresponsibility," there was a chance that UH might lose its $5 million libel insurance policy. In order to prevent this, the administration wanted Jack to look into the possibility of forming the paper into a separate corporation. "Fine," said Jack. How much time do we get? "Oh," said Mr. Holder, "I'd say about 48 hours."

FORTY-EIGHT HOURS!!!

Catch this: the administration wants the paper to form a corporation in TWO DAYS!! This does not, of course, leave much time to do a number of things: talk to the Board of Regents, who indirectly license the paper; consult a lawyer to make sure the incorporating procedure is correct; consult the SA, the body that controls the paper; consult the students who pay for the paper. Incorporating is a major step and all possibilities should be carefully explored.

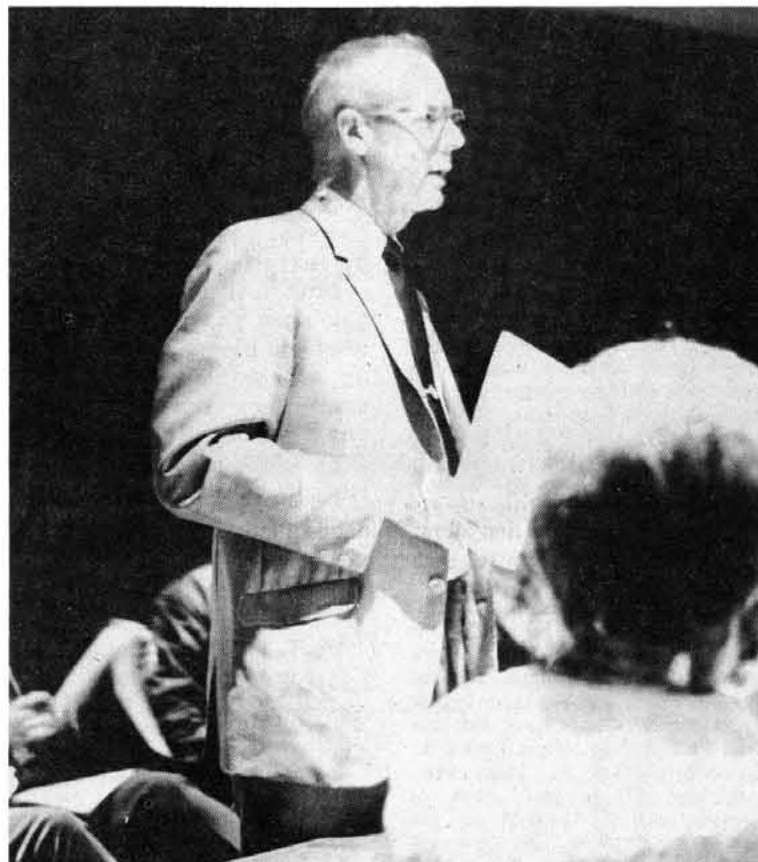

What happens if the paper doesn't incorporate in two days? "Well," says Mr. Holder, "action might have to be taken to make sure the next issue doesn't get published." "Is that a threat?" "Of course not," says Holder.

OF COURSE IT IS! It is high time that the administration keep out of student affairs. Sweeney should have learned that last year when he tried to suspend the paper. The administration MUST be taught that the student body will not let itself get pushed around.

And don't be fooled when the administration tries to blame everything on Jack. If a crisis exists, it is only an artificial creation of the administration. DON'T BE FOOLED!

Holden & Grella exchange a few pleasantries.

Stop The Press

Dear Students:

This past week I have been circulating a petition to protest the "Liberated Press". It is my opinion that something must be done to enforce stricter journalistic codes regarding this publication. I am not advocating the elimination of free speech. Everyone has the right to express his opinion. However, I feel that the "liberated Press" simply abuses the right of free speech. If you sincerely believe in something: Revolution, God, Civil Rights, etc.; you should be heard. No one however, has the right to transgress the rights of others. Much of the criticism written by Jack Hardy and his staff is destructive and negative, moreover, it is often defamatory to particular individuals. The mode of expressing the content (which is usually trite and irrelevant) is degrading to the entire student body. The "Liberated Press" is a disgraceful reflection of our campus. Unless of course it is mirroring a true image which indicates that the majority of students are non-thinking entities who spend their time drifting aimlessly about the campus. It is apparent that the Editor and his staff have little to contribute other than perverting sex and decapitating the human body. In short, these people, for the most part, cannot write. What is needed are interested students who can.

While I have accumulated a collection of names, which lends me a sense of support, I know that this is not enough. Radical changes must take place before the University of Hartford can possess: a newspaper representative of the entire campus. Times and dates of meeting will be posted on the bulletin boards to organize constructive action. Please be there if you care.

Suicide

Dear University of Hartford people:

I do not go to this school as a student, so I am writing this as an outsider. In the three years I have been in Hartford, I have seen the positive and negative in this school. I have seen Jack Hardy try to make the school newspaper and the campus a relative and together thing. I have seen continual opposition by the administration and the fraternities; these being the major targets of (note capitalization) CONSTRUCTIVE criticism. They have made little or no effort to improve themselves and instead have continually tried to destroy everything else around them. Why are they so blind? Why can't they see they are destroying themselves if they try to destroy the rest of the University? When Samson destroyed the Phillistine's temple, he killed himself as well. Why do the fraternities continue to try to give Jack hassles by petitioning to remove the Liberated Press and/or Jack; and why are they even contemplating a libel suit? Why is the administration again contemplating suspension and/or removal of editorship from Jack? Why not build instead of remove, help instead of hinder? I worked on Jack's staff for a time last year, why not try that direction? I am hopeful that this letter might help alleviate, along with Jack's persuasiveness, the tension on this campus. I will close with a simple plea. PLEASE LOVE DON'T HATE.

Get together,
a concerned outsider

Hear & Listen

Well you've heard it, are hearing it, and will continue hearing what is not very loud, not very clear, and some how you believe and somehow you confuse every word of it.

In the cafeteria where all your new thoughts go astray and are lost in a cup of coffee between classes, you manage to listen in on behind the back lies about her, him, me and even you. So you forget the next assignment.

What will they think of you when you disagree with what you hear, when you get up enough courage to say exactly how you feel. And you do care what they say.

For the rest of you who rely on what someone else says about what is going on here, and depend upon others to make decisions for you, get together all together and die.

Self Defense

Dear Editor,

I cannot accept the criticism of my poem "The Now Generation" made by Adrienne Rich in last week's issue of the Liberated Press. It may very well be that the poem is "a bore", as stated by Miss Rich, but certainly not for the reasons outlined in her article. My use of the term "Now Generation", a term used daily in our communications media and in numerous sociological discussions, refers to the ever growing group of young people in this country who hold in common certain beliefs and tendencies, among them the pacifistic ideal, the lack of trust in reason, the general contempt and lack of sympathy for the older generation and the malicious use of the word "love" in order to elevate their own opinions and denigrate those of people with whom they disagree. As for the presence of so many "I"s—since the poem expresses my own views to the contrary on these issues, they were unavoidable. I believe that the traditon for editorial poetry as well as introspective poetry has been well-established, "Modern Love" by Keats being an example of the former, and "Song of Myself" by Whitman an example of the latter. I am sorry Miss Rich did not choose to discuss the content of the poem since my whole purpose in writing it and submitting it to the Liberated Press was the communication of my ideas and feelings.

Bitch, Bitch, Bitch

Dear Mr. Editor?

Duh! Are you stupid or something? Your newspaper is only concerned with irrelevant garbage and communist filth. Why don't you get off your ass and do something? Yes there are important issues on this campus that affect both myself and my comrades (I'm sorry, I mean friends.). For instance, the lack of good quality toilet paper (of course I speak only of the mens' room), quieter vacuum cleaners in our campus center, maitre d's in the cafeteria, and syndicated COLORED comic strips in OUR newspaper. I suppose, Mr. Hardy, that Little Orphan Annie is too straight for your paper.

I was extremely insulted by the picture on the front page of last week's paper: the sororities should have equal (un-) coverage. I suppose a man's ass turns you on more than a woman's ass, you faggot.

Signed your loving roommate,
James (B.S.B.) Diamond
p.s. Do not come home too late tonight, dinner will be served at six.

Ode To Richard Nixon

I have just read an article describing President Nixon's meager attempts to end the war, and his massive unbridled efforts to suppress Marijuana...

Nixon, you think that you can make the world turn in time to your little heart
Because you have the "resident's seal, you clap your hands and bark.

Into paranoia you loudly sink.
You overstep your human rights and uselessly think to govern my very soul.

The door to my heart is closed to you and all your politiking friends.

I cannot bear the thought of you, who steals, then lies, and spends.

With ABM and Hershey and Melvin Laird, you think you can manipulate events to avoid your fate,

But past is full of men greater, wiser than you, who thought they could transcend their time, and memory devoured them, and it will feast on your flesh as well.

I think you are a crazy man to imagine that you are "Better" than those who see beyond America, beyond U.S.S.R., beyond all nations, for really, there is only the LAND, nameless in reality;

Beyond the beauty of the soul, the gentle, the kind, to the Mystery of the earth, the visionary mind, to the end of humanity's strife, to the wonderment of life.

Across the greenfields of my mind you hope to trespass
You sign your name and that's the final end.

But Nixon, you'd better watch your step, 'cause me and all my ugly friends are gonna stand all right outside your door and scream, "Keep off the Grass!"

I wish that mankind could be upon the sea of joy, and love his neighbor openly with no motive to employ.

No politics, no money, no victory or defeat,
No games to play with other's lives, no Commie sauron to beat.

Nixon, and all you politicians who think you are above me, If just for once you'd pull down your pants, then perhaps you all could see that you're just another helpless man.

I'm tired of the fear you bring: the blindness, death, sorrow.
I'm sick of all the ruined natural life, the lack of love, and so, I'm writing you this little tome filled with disgust and angry "buts."

Because tricky Dicky, deep down inside, I hate your fucking guts.

Dean E. Chamberlin

about the quality and content of the Liberated Press, I would like to say that some students of this University do not know how lucky they are to have a newspaper like the Liberated Press.

There are certain things in the paper that I do not agree with. There are other things that I agree with but do not like the way they are handled. But also there are a lot of things that I do agree with; these far outweigh the things that I do not like.

Consider for a moment the name of "our" newspaper "the Liberated Press". This means a newspaper that has been set free from the domination of "having to look out for its GOOD name" or considering its REPUTATION before writing an article. This is where freedom of the press comes in. In a normal newspaper when you submit an article it is usually censored, rewritten, edited, re-edited and rewritten again. When you finally see your article you seldom recognize it. This is not so with our newspaper. What you write is exactly what's printed.

A lot of people think that the newspaper staff consists of a lot of nasty old trolls who have nothing better to do than to sit upstairs and think about garbage. Let me tell you from experience that there is no newspaper staff as such. There are just a bunch of concerned students putting in print what they think is important.

Some of you students think "oh this is trash" and "it's just not worth reading" but all you do is talk...talking does not get the work done. If you don't agree with what is being written you have the same right as they do to put your opinion in the newspaper. Remember they thought that it was important enough to sit down and write the article. If you don't think that spending 25 or less minutes writing your opinion down and having it published is worth the effort, don't complain about the newspaper being representative of only one side of one issue.

Thoughts On The Drug Symposium

by Peter Sklar

I thought the symposium on drugs was pretty funny. I mean it's funny when you place a Connecticut narco, a chemist, and a public health official in the position of delivering a condescending lecture to a bunch of college people who smoke grass and dig that there's nothing wrong with smoking it. I might have retained a serious thought or two afterwards, had the whole thing been done a little more intelligently...like having some of the kids do the lecturing. The Man should have either stayed home that night or ventured to take a quiet seat someplace in the audience.

Dick Gregory-Speaks At UofH

by Nick Galluccio

Dick Gregory will be appearing Monday evening, October 6, at 8:30 in the University of Hartford Gymnasium. Gregory is an author, a comedian, a lecturer and an actor. But he is an active stimulus in drawing attention to the problems of the oppressed minorities in this country. He is a man with a message. A message of freedom and equality not only for the Negro but for the entire human race.

"This is a revolution. It started long before I came into it, and I may die before it's over, but we'll bust this thing and cut out this cancer. America will be as strong and beautiful as it should be for black folks and white folks. We'll all be free then, free from a system that makes a man less than a man, that teaches hate and fear and ignorance."

Gregory has spent more time in southern jails, marched in more demonstrations, prevented more racial violence and worked harder for the rights of the Negro than any other entertainer in America. His autobiography "Nigger," has become a best seller and his new book "Sermons" will prove to be an even greater success. He is a soldier in a war against hate and bigotry with weapons that include a complete personal dedication of his talent and a razor sharp sense of humor.

Named as the man most hated by the Ku Klux Klan he affirms, "They're so out of style, I think they are the only people in the country who aren't using colored sheets."

His life is a consistency of "one nighters." With suitcase in hand, he lives en route, stopping to play countless benefits, deliver church sermons, lobby in Washington and speak at universities throughout the country.

"You didn't die a slave for nothing, Momma. You brought us up. You and all those Negro mothers who gave their kids the strength to go on, to take that thimble to the well while the whites were taking buckets. Those of us who destroyed got stronger, got calluses on our souls. And now we're ready to change a system, a system where a white man can destory a black man with a single word, Nigger."

"When we're through Momma, there won't be any Niggers anymore!"

Dick Gregory's appearance sponsored by--Forum Committee Program Board of Governors

Dick Gregory is a man with a message . . . a message of freedom and equality not only for the Negro but for the entire human race. He has spent more time in southern jails, marched in more demonstrations, prevented more racial violence and worked harder for the rights of the Negro than any other entertainer in America. His autobiography, "Nigger," has become a best seller and his new book "Sermons" for Doubleday, looks to be an even bigger success.

Dick Gregory, in addition to being the great leader in Negro's fight for equality, is a top star of television, stage and motion pictures. He has toured the continent, become an international leader, starred in Broadway and on major television shows, and made a spectacular motion picture debut in "Sweet Love, Bitter."

Drug Scene '69

by Rosemary Pool

The three day symposium on drugs, which was arranged by the Forum Committee of the Program Board of Governors, proved to be an interesting experience for the few who participated in it.

Monday night's program featured three films made at the Haight-Ashbury Medical Clinic. The first, "POTpourri", provided a thorough look at the rise, manufacturing, and abuse of marijuana. The second, "LSD: Insight and Insanity", centered around the extreme dangers attached to the rise of this drug. The third, "Escape to Nowhere," was the story of a sixteen year old girl named Debbie who used drugs to gain happiness, but failed.

The audience had various, interesting, and strong opinions concerning the subject matter of the three films. Some of the comments, in order of the films present, are as follows:

1. "The film on pot was elementary and uninformative." "I used to be against the use of pot; now I firmly believe that it should be legalized." "Man, it was out of sight."
2. "The film on acid was extremely one-sided." "The experiments used to test the dangers of LSD were not scientifically valid." "There was too much speculation inserted instead of fact."
3. "That chick chose to use drugs as an escape, rather than as a catalyst for happiness." "She had little strength."

Due to the varying opinions, I feel that it is necessary to state some of the important facts that were contained in each film. It is, therefore, left up to each individual to decide for himself how serious the drug issue is today.

a) In "POTpourri," the audience is very skillfully shown how marijuana is grown, sold, and used. The "high" that smokers get from the drug is explained by the users, captured during group interaction by photographers, and analyzed by psychiatrists. The only physical reactions to pot, however, were the increase of both appetite and pulse beat. The specialists say that pot makes one "look into oneself," thus, a user may become extremely depressed and resort to suicide. Users said that pot was useful to the individual because it temporarily stops the monotony of everyday life, allows one to escape the "ugly society," and helps one to know himself better.

b) In "LSD: Insight and Insanity", the viewers are immediately faced with users having bad trips or known as freaking out. Through cinematography, one is shown how vivid and complex are the colors and figures that a person, stoned, sees. Serious claims that acid causes chromosomal breakage, and possibly cancer, were then made by scientists who had conducted experiments in animals, when injected with a moderate dosage of LSD, all produced abnormal feces with various missing faculties. Specialists concluded that, "No drug that has been tested is as harmful as LSD; it is as dangerous as Russian Roulette."

c) In "Escape to Nowhere", the audience was shown how a sixteen year old New York girl becomes addicted to everything from pot to heroin in search of happiness. She was unaffected by all the scare tactics used to discourage drug abuse. Now, she was lonely, ambitionless, and confused. She states: "I only started to use pot to calm down - I never anticipated that I'd be shooting heroin one or two times a week." "I only wish is to be a child again, free of all problems of life."

She concludes her story with a Boycott Grapes!

Issues are exciting only when they are fresh; new. And today, conflicts which aren't colorful and violent are soon passed over in favor of "better copy." The United Farm Workers have been on strike against the grape growers in Delano, California for too long. Have you forgotten them?

Farm laborers are perhaps the most oppressed workers in America. Wages, housing, working conditions are all below minimal Federal levels, and are not governed by Federal labor laws. California grape growers are able to hire non-union labor at cruel prices, completely controlling the market. Caesar Chavez has been leading a strike at Delano, supported by the late Robert Kennedy, and there is a nation-wide movement to boycott supermarkets and liquor stores which sell grapes and wines from California fields. But too many have forgotten.

U.F.W. are boycotting stores in the Hartford area, stores which continue to sell grapes and hire non-union labor. This weekend, they were at Mott's in West Hartford, with signs and literature designed to inform people of the movement. Their object is not harrassment, but information. The John Birch Society was there, too, warning people of the "Marxist tactics" being used. But the West Hartford housewives didn't care. They had forgotten.

Caesar Chavez is coming to Hartford on October 13. If anyone can keep the memory of Delano alive, it is this shy, quiet and yet charismatic man. Come and see him. Learn if you cannot join; know if you cannot support. Do not forget.

POVERTY is never having enough. Poverty is always running out of money, of food, or clothes, of fuel, of soap, of bedding, of equipment, of room, of medicines, of time, of anyway to go any place, of anything to do anything with, of any way for the family to stay together and live.

Too many people tend to forget that there is another minority group in Hartford beside the Blacks. A minority of people who are United States citizens yet have no representative on City Council. The official census states that there are 19,000 total Puerto Rican and Spanish speaking people in Hartford. The actual number is closer to 24,000 adults, of which only 3,700 are registered to vote. Lacking political power, the Puerto Ricans are the forgotten people among the paper shuffling bureaucracy.

South Green Multi-Service Center is a division of the Community Renewal Team located at 99 Main St. around the corner from Park St. It is a non-political, non profit organization under the Office of Economic Opportunity that is working to help people help themselves by instilling an upward mobility in them. Community Renewal Team offers people aid in getting jobs, health services, legal services, and any problem that a person could possibly encounter.

Many of the Puerto Ricans who consult C.R.T. have been in the United States a month or less and are still adjusting to the social factors of the daily life situation, in addition to the language barrier, discrimination, diet change and temperature change.

C.R.T. job counselors treat the "total" person's unique problem. Their approach is a multi-faceted one in that they cover economic, educational, sociological, occupational, and psychological problems. After defining the entry skill level of the clientele, the job counselor matches the function level and job requirements.

Some employers insist upon high school graduates. C.R.T. points out that according to a national study, the majority of high school graduates in the United States function on an 8th grade level in most areas and even below that in mathematics. A high school degree doesn't identify the credentials let alone the function level of the individual.

In the month of August 1969,

Michael Porter

C.R.T. more than doubled the first seven months figure of job placements with a total figure of 185 placements of two job counselors. With each applicant that is hired, goes a "follow up" procedure, "follow through" (after 3 days) "follow up" (1 month) and "follow out" (3 months). This system is an attempt not only to keep tabs on referrals but to build a rapport with the employers. During the "Follow Up" stage, C.R.T. asks the employer about incentives and goals of his program plus new openings.

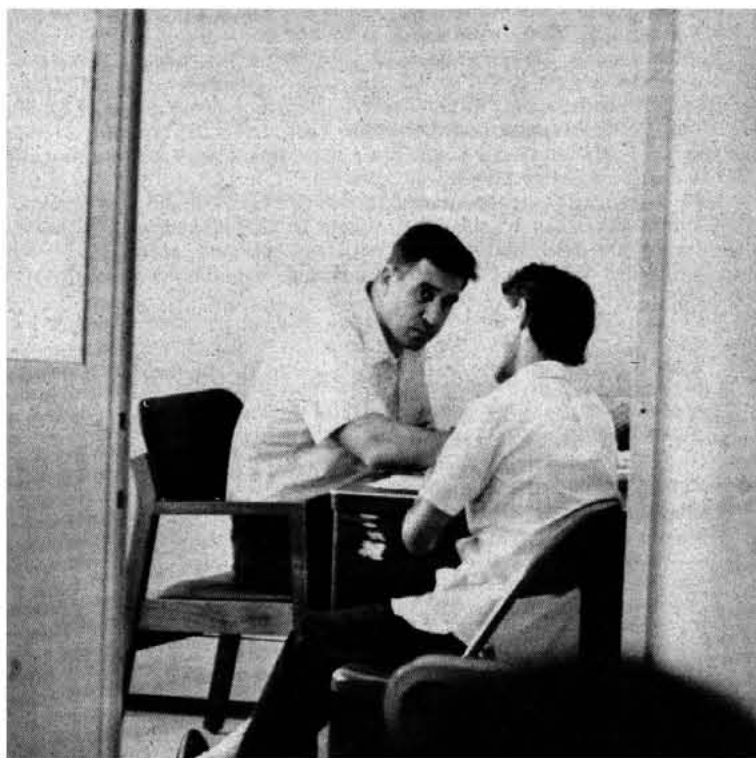

Also offered is a Legal Service consisting of a rotating pool of 72 lawyers who offer their services for all non-criminal cases including breach of peace, legal separations, divorces and civil suits.

A visiting nurse will be stationed at South Green Multi-Services to:

1. pinpoint the health programs of each person applying for work while establishing employability.
2. have the family heads bring their families in for a health span -- referring their medical needs to the proper channels
3. train three field workers to outreach into neighborhoods and identify health problems of the Poverty Target Area residents.

It has been found that in addition to the normal health problems in the Hartford area, the Puerto Ricans have an acute problem with parasites. Of 365 physicals taken in the Poverty Target Area, over 50% are infected with some type of worm. One of the more harmful diseases is Schistosomiasis-Beclhazia. It occurs in the large intestine and during gestation the worms climb to the liver and cause inflammation, scar tissue and serious liver disease. It has been found that approximately 13% of the Hartford Puerto Rican population has Schistosomiasis. This would normally constitute an epidemic -- but nobody thinks of Puerto Ricans.

To qualify for aid from Community Renewal Team, a person must live in a Poverty Target Area. In the South Green area this would include South Green, ABCD Charter Oak Terrace and Sheldon Charter Oak. All the services are free and include job training programs, language programs sewing and other services, many of which are donated by individuals. Most people hear about South Green by word of mouth. It takes care of about 500 people a month. C.R.T. needs more Health care workers to outreach the neighborhoods to identify problems, make immediate adjustments in homes, and make referrals to much needed Health Care Units such as the University of Connecticut-McCook Hospital and the Hartford Dispensary.

UofH Launches Special Program For Students In "Up With People"

The University of Hartford has launched an experimental educational program to provide special "on-the-road" college instruction for young men and women traveling throughout this country and abroad with the "Up With People" program.

Dr. A.M. Woodruff, UofH chancellor, announced today that approximately 45 members of the "Up With People" cast have been enrolled as special students, to pursue college studies through the University's School of Arts and Sciences during the current academic year.

According to Dr. Woodruff, the program will enable these students to undertake college studies this year while continuing to travel with the 120-member "Up With People" cast. The itinerary for the cast includes shows in Vermont, Pennsylvania and Washington, D. C., during the first semester, and performances in France, Belgium and Switzerland during the second semester.

The new program has been designed to meet the standards established by the University for its regular academic programs, Dr. Woodruff noted. The dean and academic department heads of the School of Arts and Sciences have complete jurisdiction over faculty selection, curricula, and examinations.

Chancellor Woodruff stated that the University this year plans to study carefully the progress and results of this special educational venture to gain insight into possibilities for travel by faculty and students in connection with a variety of existing university programs.

Faculty members this first semester include three full-time members of the University faculty, who will travel to meet the cast in communities on the itinerary and conduct classes there. Three other qualified teachers traveling with the group have been named as adjunct faculty members of the University and will conduct courses under the direction of UofH academic department heads.

Frequent visits to classes will be made during the first semester by other faculty, deans and department chairmen to review the progress of the program, said Dr. Woodruff. Also, occasional guest lecturers and specialists from colleges and universities in the areas where the traveling group will be performing will be invited to teach classes.

In addition to the "on-the-road" schedule, these students will also participate in the regular five-week 1970 Summer Session, in residence at the University.

The faculty members conducting "on-the-road" classes will plan the educational experiences of their students to take advantage of the special opportunities offered by the varied locales in this country and in Europe to be visited by the students.

During the first semester, studies will include history, philosophy, psychology, American literature, composition, speech and drama, and French.

John Balmer, associate professor of speech and drama in the School of Arts and Sciences, will conduct a Television Workshop for the special students. Prof. Balmer, who received his undergraduate education at Brown University and his master of arts degree in drama at Wesleyan University, has been a full-time faculty member at the University since 1946.

Miss Virginia Arens Shea, an instructor in the University's English Department, will teach composition and literature. Miss Shea received the bachelor or arts degree in English literature from the University of Hartford and the master of arts degree in English from Temple University. She has completed her course work toward a doctorate in English literature at the University of Connecticut.

Another full-time staff member of the University's English department will teach American literature.

The three "Up With People" staff members who have been named to the UofH adjunct faculty for this special program are:

Dr. Morris H. Martin, who will teach History of Civilization and an introductory course in philosophy. Dr. Martin is a graduate of Wadham and Merton Colleges, Oxford University, England, and was one of the youngest men ever to be awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at Oxford.

Miss Ruth Buescher, who will teach Introduction to Psychology and Psychology of Adjustment. Dr. Buescher received her undergraduate education at St. Francis College, Fort Wayne, Indiana, and her masters degree and doctorate from Fordham University. Her previous experience in the field of education includes teaching in Fort Wayne and New York City, as well as social work for the Head Start Program.

Miss Tova Duncan, who will teach French. Miss Duncan received the bachelor of arts degree from the University of California at Berkeley and did her graduate work there and at the Sorbonne.

She teaches the integrated multimedia St. Cloud method of language instruction developed by the French government.

"Up With People" is an independent, non-profit organization which provides young people with the opportunity to develop their potentials by writing, producing and staging musical shows and from the educational experience of travel in this country and abroad. The organization currently has three traveling casts.

The young men and women in the program do not receive any salary for their participation and must provide for their own personal expenses. Members of the various casts stay in private homes in the communities they visit. Travel expenses are met primarily through gate receipts from their performances and the sale of records.

An estimated 90 million people in the United States have viewed four "Up With People" television specials. Over five million people have seen the "Up With People" shows in live performances in 49 states, including special performances at Carnegie Hall, Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles Music Center and Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C.

In addition the "Up With People" shows have traveled to 25 nations at the invitation of government and national civic leaders.

Alice's Cookbook

In order to supplement the drab diet of the University cafeteria or better known as the chemical miracle of Hartford, it has been decided that a cookbook of culinary delicacies will be published in weekly, if possible, sections. The connoisseurs of UofH have feasted on these delights before, but have always wondered how to prepare them. As we all know a chef never reveals the recipe. The actual nutritive value of many of the upcoming treats is dubious, but the one most agreed upon aspect is that they are unique. In some cases they may be breathtaking, possibly on a permanent basis. But what the hell. In closing, I remind you that the secret of a good cook is a good recipe. But if something goes wrong the author cannot be held liable.

- 1) Obtain 50 grams of dried peyote cacti and put into a medium size bowl.
- 2) Add 8.5 ounces of 190 proof alcohol and cover bowl tightly. Allow to sit one day with occasional stirring.
- 3) Filter the mixture and save the filtrate, the stuff in the filter.
- 4) Soak this in 3.4 Ounces of 1 normal hydrochloric acid, for two hours.
- 5) Allow the liquid from part 3 to evaporate and leave a residue.
- 6) Filter part 4 and discard the residue. Combine the HCl with the residue from part 3 and filter again.
- 7) To the solution add, drop by drop, just enough 2 normal potassium hydroxide to make the solution neutral, pH 7.
- 8) Add 3.4 ounces of C.P. choloform, stir and let mixture separate into two layers. Decant the chloroform layer and discard; save the water layer.
- 9) Evaporate to a gummy residue. Dissolve in chloroform and filter. For best usage apply in tiny drops below the left nostril.

Most people who have been to Mexico know of the native mind blower, peyote. Peyote is a cactus that grows all over the desert and if prepared properly makes a neat dessert.

President's Message

"SOMETHING nice happened last Thursday at the Physical Education Center: seventy-six pints of blood were donated by the students, faculty and staff of the University of Hartford. As it was, about forty per cent of the donors were faculty and staff. Our goal was 125 pints which was more than reasonable, considering that there were over 2,000 eligible donors on campus while the Bloodmobile was here. I want to thank the other seventy-five people who joined me in helping to save the lives of others. To everyone else -- why didn't you give?"

The Forum Committee of the P.B.O.G. presented a very interesting program last week called the Drug Scene. It was climaxed on Wednesday nite with an extremely interesting and informative lecture by Dr. Donald Louria, who is a prominent authority on the effects of drugs. However, only about fifty students bothered to come and benefit from this lecture.

Next Monday, Dick Gregory will speak in the cafeteria at 8:30 p.m. I believe all students should come and hear what he has to say. This is a must for all "TRUE Students". We have two openings in the Executive Board of the P.B.O.G. We need a vice-president and a chairman of the recreation committee. Interested students should pick up applications from Mrs. Knowlton, the program advisor in student services.

Dick Gregory

presented by the forum committee PBOG
Monday, October 6 -- 8:30 p.m.
Holcomb Commons

Dick Gregory is a man with a message -- a message of freedom and equality not only for the Blacks but for all races. He has spent more time in southern jails, marched in more demonstrations, prevented more racial violence, and worked harder for the Black than any other entertainer in America. His autobiography "NIGGER" has become a best-seller and his new book "Sermons" for Doubleday, looks to be an even bigger success.

But more than a commentator, more than an author, more than a comedian, he is a soldier in a war against hate and bigotry. His weapons include a complete personal dedication of his talent and a razor sharp sense of humor. His home is in five suitcases, a garment bag and a tape recorder. He lives en route stopping to play countless benefits, deliver church sermons, lobby in Washington, and speak at colleges and universities all over the country. Named the man most hated by the Ku Klux Klan he quips, "They're so out of style, I think they are the only people in the country who aren't using colored sheets." A dynamic communicative man, his message is vital to the fight for equality in this country and his experience is first hand.

Mel Reisz At The Corner

Mel had turned off the two slide projectors from his "Mass Media" presentation. Everyone caught their breath and slowly moved out of the Coffee House. As the lights came on the moody effects of lighted candles and incense was over, but Mel Reisz had left something in the minds of all that attended the Coffee House Friday night.

Through the use of his own song material and an automatic collage created by two slide projectors, Mel's realistic outlook on life, especially concerning our country, was vividly expressed. He dramatically commented on the racial issues and violence in the U. S. The pictures, and especially the ideas behind the pictures, were scenes that many people look at but few people see. Mel made them see.

Paul Siebel, a country-western style folksinger with an album soon to be released on the Elektra label, will be appearing at the Corner Coffeehouse in Gengras Campus Center this Friday night (October 3). Siebel will be doing two shows; at 7 PM and again at 9:30. All are advised to pay the nominal 50¢ admission charge and see some first-rate entertainment.

Paul is a professional entertainer in every sense of the word. His style can best be described as country - western - blues - folk - rock - in other words, he has a style all his own which has something that appeals to everyone. An accomplished guitarist, Paul uses his voice as another fine instrument to add to the general excellence of his performance. Those who are used to the second-rate performers who have been appearing at the Corner are in for quite a pleasant surprise.

Besides being an accomplished and polished performer, Paul is a top-notch songwriter. Nearly all of the material he performs is his own. Those of us who have long admired him as a composer and singer are eagerly awaiting the release of his album, which is considered to be long overdue. And if you don't think you'll be able to afford the album (or even if you think you will), be sure not to miss Paul Siebel at the Corner Friday night at 7 or at 9:30. Introduction

Last week, the newspaper was dominated by anti-fraternity sensationalism. This theme was in poor taste and did not bring the point across. The paper was turned over to narrow-minded and one-sided people who obviously don't care what they say, as long as it's anti-Greek.

I honestly believe that most of what was said was true. However, it was so one-sided and biased that I can't even congratulate the writers on their observations. They didn't even attempt to point out the worthwhile aspects of the Greek system. If there were none, I seriously doubt whether anyone would bother joining such a poor institution.

I have heard that the reason for the anti-fraternity theme of the newspaper was to unite all the Greeks against a "common enemy." It was to anger the Greeks into action. That's fine. I think the initial idea was really good, however, the way you went about it was in poor taste. This issue was written just before rush, which wasn't fair at all. Let the prospective pledges judge for themselves whether the Greek system is worth their while.

I would like to thank you personally, Jack Hardy, for letting us present our side. As you have seen this past week, some of us do care. Goldie DeBlasio

Running Scared?

Dear Staph,

I would like to thank you for your very interesting expose on fraternities. Besides the fact that your information was highly exaggerated, misleading, sarcastic, and in some cases, out and out bullshit, it was very good.

Your editorial did seek to destroy the fraternity system of this campus. In order to seek to destroy something you have to be afraid of it. What are you afraid of Jack? Why do we scare you? Mr. Hardy, last year you were a paid-up brother of Theta Chi fraternity, so when you shit on us, you do so on yourself at the same time.

It is ironic that I was also interviewed and I did not say anything that was anti-fraternity or that could be blown out of proportion to be anti-fraternity. Is that why nothing I said was in the Liberated Press? Again I ask the question, why are you afraid of us?

Fraternally yours,
Barry Russin

The Greeks' Social Purpose

Perhaps the best way to open a comment on this subject would be to define the proper name of the Greeks. We are, by name and deed, Social Greeks. The University of Hartford has long turned to the Greeks to provide social activities for the entire student body. We have in the past dominated every social function on this campus. Perhaps now that we have a series of concerts and University run activities, our social functions will no longer be appreciated. But we have worked and will continue to work for the social improvement of this University. We have been referred to as a suitcase school many times in the past. It is this very problem to which we have been directing our efforts. Our Brothers pay to provide this social atmosphere for the entire school. We thus have the right to expect repayment for this effort. Many graduates down through the years think back with fond memories of the many good times had at Fraternity functions. But we realize too, that we cannot dwell on our past efforts. We must strive to improve and expand our social scheme. It is to this end that the united Greek front is working.

Try Research

To the Editor:

When one reads an article, a book or any type of manuscript and finds just one line, phrase or concept to be false, then he becomes skeptical of the entire piece. After reading the article on Greek system at the UofH campus, I am led to the conclusion that it was sensationalistic, unintellectual and elementary. It was full of generalizations and false concepts.

You have taken the view that whatever you think is the absolute truth. Furthermore, there was absolutely no research done on your article, because there are many who disagree with you but their voice was not heard. I would hardly call you a judge of truth. As a matter of fact, I can't even give you an elementary characteristic of common-sense, for when one attacks a group, an individual, etc. without doing research, and hearing other views, then he lacks common sense and has gained the characteristic of ignorance.

You criticize the fraternal organizations with false concepts. You said that many of the fraternities raised money for the library fund and then pocketed it. Proof Mr. Hardy. Where is your proof for these attacks? You said that fraternities and sororities could be such a constructive force on the campus and in the community. I hate to disillusion you but every Greek Organization on this campus has held community service projects since their birth. As a matter of fact, one fraternity on this campus has held community service projects since their birth. As a matter of fact, one fraternity on this campus received its Natural Community Service Award for outstanding contributions and work toward the community of Hartford. But, unfortunately, community service projects never make it in your "Liberated Press" because you can't criticize it, correct it with pot or acid or sneak the word fuck into it. Socially the Greek System, has been the backbone of this campus. What have you Mr. Hardy and friends contributed to the school besides your obscene pictures that occasionally appear in your so-called "Newspaper"?

So Mr. Hardy and associates, you've tried to mask yourselves as intellectuals and the judges of certainty. You write articles that have no research and are one-sided. You ignore opinions that differ from your own. But, your mask has finally been ripped off and it has revealed a large vacuole of ignorance.

Fraternally,
Sheldon Margolis

Wrong Again

Dear Mr. Hardy,

After reading your "fascinating" newspaper last week, I was shocked to see how you pictured the Greeks. Your staff's impression of the sororities was wrong. They are doing something!

The Panhellenic Council is the governing and regulating body of the sororities. It sets up the Rush program and makes the rules pertaining to pledges and rushees. There are three sororities in the Council; one with membership under ten and two with membership over ten.

These sororities come together under a common interest -- being Greek. We do try to work together as one. There is competition between any two groups who share a goal. In basketball, UofH competes

The Value of Fraternity and what it means to you

The fraternity system has both its defenders and its opponents. Administrators, faculty, and others debate its advantages periodically; However, rarely is anything published which outlines the real value that students and alumni receive from their fraternity affiliation. This article is not so much a defense as it is a presentation of the facts and figures describing what a fraternity can mean to its members.

Membership in an organization which has chapters and alumni throughout the United States and Canada can be a very moving experience. North American students today are far more mobile than those of days gone by. Many move from a Liberal Arts College of their original enrollment to a cooperating institution where they might complete specialized curricula in engineering, medicine, law, or business administration. A significantly growing proportion go on for graduate work after obtaining a Baccalaureate Degree.

Of all the campuses in the country (about 1,546 grant Baccalaureate Degrees), over 1,000 now have Greek-letter societies. 280 more campuses than in 1956. Barring overlap of those who belong both to honorary and social fraternities one out of every 20 Americans is Greek-Letter affiliated. Of the 61 general fraternities, there are 260,000 undergraduates and 2,998,000 living alumni. Over 70,000 were new initiates last year.

Although only 20% of the nations college students are affiliawith Trinity, but they both have a common goal as an educational institution. Competition is healthy but cooperation is possible with it.

On our agenda right now are 1) a Halloween party at Children's Village and 2) a mixer for November. These plans will not come into being by themselves. They will come about as the results of conscientious planning and participation by members of the Panhellenic Council, regardless of individual sorority.

So you see that the Panhellenic Council does do things besides exist.

Sincerely yours,
Maggie Patterson
President of the Panhellenic Council

ted with a general Fraternity such as ours, three quarters of the Chief Executives of this country's 750 largest corporations are members of Fraternities. It is obvious that three quarters of the Presidents of our leading industries, chosen from only 20% of the male college graduates are a select group indeed.

Every president of the United States born since 1825 except two has been a member of a Fraternity. Every Vice-President of the United States born since 1825 except two has been a member of a Fraternity. One hundred members of the President's Cabinets (out of 158) during the past 60 years have been Fraternity members, as well as 40 justices of the Supreme Court (out of 47) since the Civil War. In the 90th U.S. Congress, 80% of the senators and 39% of the representatives were members of National Fraternities and Sororities. This is eminently higher than average when one notes that only 20% of the male college graduates have been affiliated and that about 10% of the Senate and 20% of the House have had no college education or only brief college attendance. Furthermore, a number of our National lawmakers graduated from institutions where no fraternities or sororities existed.

Almost half of the Governors of our states are Fraternity men; 79% of all who attended colleges where there were undergraduate Fraternity chapters were members.

The U.S. office of education, hardly a pre-fraternity source, clearly associates Fraternity membership with persistence to graduation. It is expected that one half of those who matriculate at an American college will graduate. On those campuses where there are no Fraternities 33% of the men will graduate. On these campuses where there are no Fraternities, of the men who do not join, 47% will graduate; and of the men who join National Fraternities, 59% will graduate.

Fraternities help one become the "uncommon man". They are the last stronghold of independent living in the highly organized university and college where one's complete life is dominated by university activities. When the Fraternity does its job well, it cannot be outdone by the dormitory because of the freedom and more importantly, the responsibility it affords. If this image is fulfilled conscientiously by its members, the Fraternity grants to its members more than is available to the average man. A Fraternity is an adjunct to college and university education. It takes over where the university role leaves off. It is an "Experience where value is inherent". It is a laboratory for life.

The Fraternity is an experience in living together and sharing maintenance, self government, and personal relations in a community that profits socially and intellectually. The Fraternity contributes the polish that a man desires in his late adolescent years. It teaches social graces, leadership, preparation for a job, the significance of understanding other personalities and of being compatible with them, and the ability to operate a household in preparation for ones own life after college. The member contributes service and is taught to understand a truly professional way of life after college. The figures tell us that college Fraternity is a major, positive institution in American college life and has contributed more than any other organization to the ultimate success of American youth.

One of the sharpest attacks on the Fraternity system in recent years has been its alleged discriminatory practices. We in Tau Epsilon Phi can be proud that at no time in our history did we discriminate against any one by reason of race, color, or creed. We were founded as a non-denominational and non-sectarian Fraternity; as our Creed states... "we judge our fellows not by their rank nor wealth but by their worth as men..." Religious or racial discrimination has no place in the Fraternity system and is rapidly disappearing.

We believe that public dissemination of the above facts are long overdue. Our members, and indeed the general public should be aware of all the advantages of Fraternity membership and particularly membership in Tau Epsilon Phi.

Proudly a TEP

What Next?

To the editor,

After reading your "enquirer type" article on the fraternal system on this campus, I have come to the conclusion that you used the Greek system as a scapegoat because you ran out of obscene pictures and words to use and needed something to attack.

Greeks To U of H

Ode to Jolly Jack

*Little Jack Hardy, Life of the Party
Felt the need to complain;
In a fit of unrest, he would try his best,
And repeated his long-time refrain:*

*"Down with the Greeks, the sisters and brothers;
Abolish each fraternity.
All this school needs is a real man who leads -- Choose either Ben Holden or me."*

*You criticize our mixers, beer blasts, and the like -- Corruption of society are we;
But, my dear Jack, there's something you lack
If your best weapon is pornography.*

*If you're all so concerned for the good of the world
Why not start with a clean-up campaign?
From your filthy appearance and "intellectual" minds
What can our campus gain?*

*Homecoming and Greek Week are parts of college to us;
You think protest and trips mean living.
Stand on your feet and face reality:
Discover the meaning of giving.*

*We'll still continue as brothers and sisters,
So don't bang your head on a wall.
While we're making friendships and helping each other
Maybe you can run it all.*

*But before you attack us and charge us again
(You who were once one of us),
Take care, Mr. Hardy, and do think it over
Before you begin your next fuss.*

*For we are the Greeks, and we are not dying;
We believe in all that we do.
We love it, we live it, and we really give it;
And our togs are off -- to you.*

Give Us Answers

Dear Jack,

First of all, I would like to state that I am a freshman, and I am in no way whatsoever, related to any fraternity, here or elsewhere. These are my own feelings and I was not put up to this by the IFC or any members of any fraternities.

My first question is why the S.A. or the Campus Center has the right to say that fraternities or sororities should be abolished. Possibly, the point about mixers not being allowed in the Campus Center is valid (although I do not see where a fraternity mixer would cause more trouble than a school sponsored one) but after all the fraternities do pay $100.00 to use the Campus Center, so it is not as if they were using it for nothing.

Another question is, what is meant by 'we could sponsor constructive and/or educational programming instead?' Like what, Jack Hardy folk sings or frisbee contests? (no offense Jack, I think you play great) Face it, contrary to what else was written in the UH News, every one who isn't in a fraternity or sorority does not spend all of their time studying, and people do enjoy the mixers. I think personally that educational programs could be set up, and that the students could simply choose which ever they prefer.

My third question is, if you know that all of this graft has been going on, instead of telling us about it (although it is interesting to know) why haven't you channeled your writing so that something could be done about correcting this situation? The same is true of everything you mentioned. Why hasn't the S.A. been notified? I mean, have you been storing up all of this evidence over the years in preparation of your expose on the Greek system at the University of Hartford?

In reference to John Cronin; you state that, "Never before has such a large number of people been joined together to form such a negative force in an academic institution." I disagree in that perhaps the organization I will mention and its affiliates are not as large as the international fraternity system, but what this group lacks in number, it more than makes up for in negativness. This group is the S.D.S. and their revolutionary counterparts.

As I recall, it wasn't the fraternities taking over and destroying the campuses, or if I may take out of context some of Jack Hardy's words, 'all they do is cause trouble and damage to the University', it was these other groups.

And as I further recall, it was the fraternities that were trying to prevent their respective schools from being torn down. And from what I see on the sports page, it seems that the fraternities 'take time out' for sports now and then.

Well, I'm not telling every one to pledge, and I'm not going to tell every one not to pledge. In fact, I'm not even sure if I will even pledge. I'm just asking for some honest answers.

Sincerely,
Larry K. Miller
Freshman

In Reply to Stan Starsiak

In reply to Stan Starsiak -

"Everyone must conform," says Stanley Starsiak, in reference to fraternities. I would like Mr. Starsiak to tell me where he got this information, or did he make this clever observation all by himself. "Individuality fits" is the slogan for one fraternity on campus and I think it applies to most of the other Greek organizations as well. Stanley Starsiak would THINK about who comprises the different fraternities he would see that there is no "frat man." True, some brothers seem alike but, when you put a lot of people in a group some always seem similar. However, if you care enough to go beyond physical appearance, attire, the way one sits or walks, you might see that each person is really an individual.

Mr. Starsiak conveys the impression that it is a terrible thing for a member of an organization to be proud of it and try to promote its name. The Sports Car Club, the Radio Station, and the members of the newspaper take pride in their organization as well. Is this wrong?

What's wrong with the fraternities competing on the athletic field? Mr. Starsiak, like any other man, is free to join an independent league. If Mr. Starsiak and his entourage would support the athletic events of this University, then Greeks would not be the only spectators there.

Who are you, Stanley Starsiak, to tell us when we should give money to charitable organizations? You're absolutely right about the fact that we donate on Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter. Do you? Where were you Mr. Starsiak, when the brothers of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity bounced a ball for four days straight? (relatively speaking) Did you donate one out of the $2000.00 they raised for the Hartford Heart Fund. By the way, the entire sum went to the Fund and not into their treasury (sorry Jack) which can be checked with the Heart Fund.

Mr. Starsiak feels that the fraternities have a set policy against studying. All Greek organizations on campus have specialized study hours for pledges, which are used only for studying. You see, while we do belong to Greek organizations, we also are students, just like you. Grades are important to us, we study for exams, and we DO care about academics.

Starsiak has made the amazing discovery that fraternity brothers help each other in their school work. This is fantastic. I give you a lot of credit Mr. Starsiak because, based on his article I get the impression that he never sought any outside academic aid. Congratulations.

There is no denying the fact that fraternities need money to keep them out of hot water, but what organization doesn't.

The newspaper certainly does.

To The Defense

Dear Brother Hardy,
Having read the barrage of criticism levied by the "Liberated Press" upon fraternities last week, I decided that the newcomers to our campus should at least be exposed to the other end of the story.

Truly fraternities are first social. But a completely social scene is a narrow road and fraternities realize this. For you to play the role of God, to pass judgment upon others, and then use your influential position to impose your will on still others is an assumption and use of power in excess of your duties.

For the "Liberated Press" people to point a finger at fraternities while talking of "conformity" and "loss of individuality" is absurd. The so-called "free-thinkers" are the easiest to spot on the campus; typically long hair, beads, army jacket, or vest, bell-bottoms or faded, torn levis, and no shoes are just the outward appearances; more important are the similarity of opinions towards Vietnam, or Blacks, or Greeks.

Fraternities on this campus still offer more in terms of friendship than any independent group (barring perhaps the UCF) on campus.

Fraternities on this campus are not blind to change. They are perhaps only slower to throw tradition to the wind. We fully realize the type of student now on campus. We are aware of the necessity of change. Your intentions perhaps were to hasten this inevitable change in fraternities. In this case, Brother Hardy, your enthusiasm surpassed your good judgment. Your untimely ridicule undoubtedly will have an effect on the easily swayed freshman minds -- hopefully it will show them not to believe everything they read in our illustrious paper but to get out and view the Greeks in all aspects and decide for themselves.

Fraternally,
Scott Campbell, President of Theta Chi

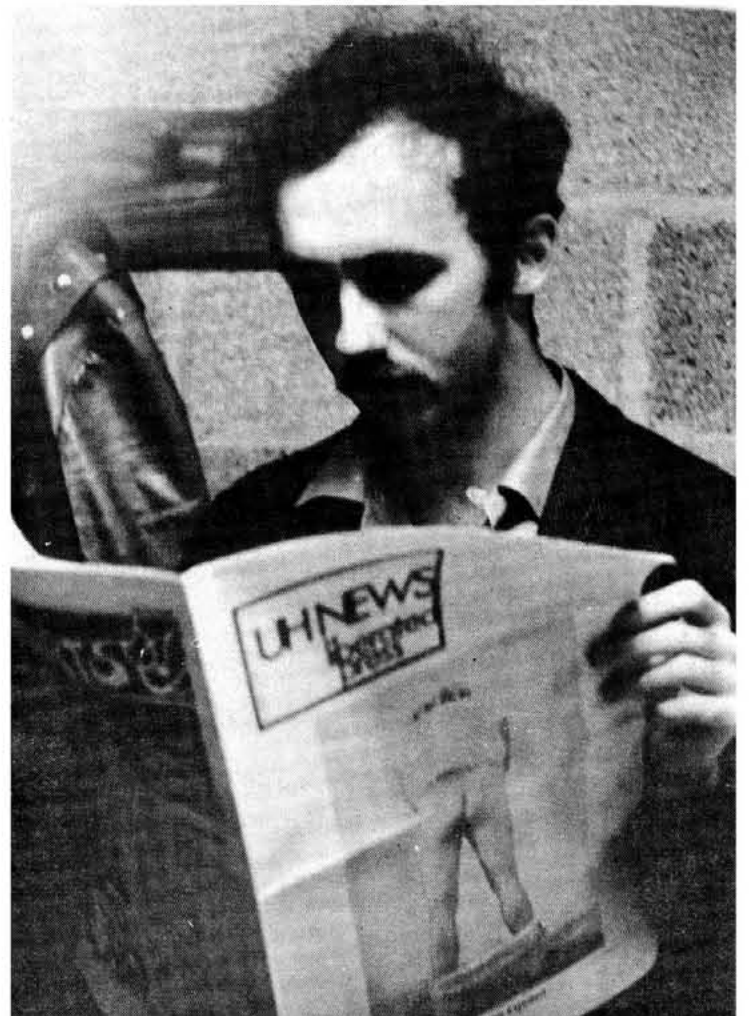

We Can Take It Can You?

Dear Jack:

While I realize that this letter might get lost or filed under more "fraternity bullshit", I still feel (Right in my gut) a need to write and voice an opinion. Last Wednesday our campus paper turned its guns upon the Greek System at Uha. Your aim was accurate and deadly. You sent several organizations babbling to their respective National groups. This in my opinion exemplifies the present state of the Greek System. It is unfortunate that such groups, who are the first to cry foul, cannot learn from that flurry of opposition. We, of Phi Sigma Kappa realize our shortcomings and are working to overcome the problems. Yet, we are not the only groups on campus which could better direct their aims. I understand Jack that your newspaper is undergoing an audit to determine the whereabouts of several thousand dollars. Rumor perhaps? While we realize that as an organized group on campus we owe something to the entire University community, yet I see little involvement by the large number of freaks on campus. Actually Jack you and your newspaper staff have, in effect, created your own little click. This letter of nolo contendere. The Greek system has long needed a kick in the ass. If we cannot step back and laugh at ourselves once in a while then things are really hurting. We are aware of the need for change within our organization and for increased involvement. However the basic premise upon which fraternities were founded is not outdated and will continue to be relevant down through the years. While I see an increasing feeling of brotherhood among the freaks and the plastic-people, there is still a gap in their relationships. I feel that we offer a closeness and understanding that is not possible in the fast moving, thrill of the moment type of relationship. Perhaps it is unfortunate but I will probably have fonder memories of my dealings with my fraternity than of my connection with the University. I think that the new drive for campus activities is great and we are now able, financially, to attract the large name groups to the campus. But, there are individuals that enjoy small fraternity parties also. Certainly, your comments were at times sweeping generalities and I realize this. Your call for the abolition of fraternities was an extreme that was uncalled for. After all Jack how will you be able to play football for Theta Chi if that happened. Was last Thursday's exhibition on the football field for the benefit of your own frat brothers or for all Greeks? Gee, Jack do you think you could ever be a hypocrite? No, I guess not, but that Theta Chi sweatshirt did wonders for you. You should wear it more often, maybe some of the ideals of Theta Chi would reappear in your editorials.

In conclusion Jack, what we are moving toward is not only a greater involvement in the campus and community, but the possible creating of a new "Freak-Greek".

To The Student Body

Fraternities exposed!!!!? the Fraternal system at the UofH has been under attack as socially ineffective and derogatory towards the members of that university and the community for as long as they have coexisted. At times their criticism has been justified -- other times not. Mr. Hardy has gone beyond justified or unjustified criticism in exhibiting a degree of tastelessness, tactlessness and inconsequential naive journalism that is an insult to the intellectual and aesthetic sensitivities of both the fraternities and a great majority of the "independent" students. His baseless sensationalism completely belies the constructive purpose which he says prompted his actions. Mr. Hardy has misused the UH News to create a biased distorted view of the fraternities and sororities at the UofH. His staff, in the best tradition of the hack, has misconstrued, misquoted and taken words out of context in an effort to create that view.

Refuting the accusations made against Tau Kappa Epsilon is done best by our actions. True we dress relatively "straight" (this does not pertain to D. Petey Rex). We do so not because of fraternal sanction but rather of our own volition. True we submit to some degree of regimentation as a corollary of organization. We do so because each one of us has adjudged this course to be one of the better methods of becoming an ordered autonomous human being. Our detractors confuse superficial individuality with true autonomy within a pragmatic social framework. The right of the individual to govern himself according to his own reason are qualities of the latter and not of the former.

No one is intimidated or coerced into any fraternity. No one signs away his heart at any rush function. No one upon rushing or entering a fraternity commits anything other than good faith. No one is more anxious to show our good faith than we are.

We recognize the need for a change in the fraternal system and that change is being accomplished. To eliminate by decree deviation from the norm of dignity would make us truly the social sanctions that the UH News portrays us to be. The change must evolve from a heightened sense of social awareness and a respect for the autonomous nature of our brother -- brother both in the fraternal and biblical sense. The UHNews does not have to "expose" us. We are proud of who and why we are. Come to the rushes and you might find that we are much different than the "Guide to Fraternities" make us out to be.

Greeks-Doing Their Own Thing

Since I am a Greek and proud of it, I feel that I must add a few corrections to your gross exaggerations and misinterpretations of the Greek System on this campus.

First of all, if you do away with the Greeks on this campus then you might as well say goodbye to three-fourths of the committees and organizations that make up the activities of this entire University. Let me give you a few FACTS:

- Freshman Queen Coronation - TEP - Greek
- Homecoming - Peter Furman - Greek
- Greek Weekend - Jim Bryon - Greek
- Student Senate - eight Greeks
- Program Board of Governors - eight Greek Chairmen
- President Football Club - Craig Miller - Greek
- Program Director - Kevin Fahey - Greek
- Intramural Athlete King - Pete Rex - Greek
- U H Liberated News - Jack Hardy - Greek

The above is a mere fraction of what the Greeks do on this campus. They contribute civically, academically and socially. I need not go into all the areas of contribution for I feel that its really only important for us to know. Obviously you don't because you printed such ridiculous garbage.

Your newspaper which was so benevolently dedicated to the Greeks on this campus was on the most part pure trash. Why didn't you try comparing us with other groups on campus i.e. freaks and the independents etc. Then you might have gotten a more accurate picture of those doing things around here.

Greeks themselves play an intricate part in the functioning of this entire University. Look around you Mr. Hardy and you will see that on almost every committee this University has a Greek or two serving on it.

So if you must continue tearing down Greeks -- go ahead -- no one will take you seriously. Just as I said before, take away the Greeks and you take away those things that make up any type of campus life whatsoever.

Marijuana Law Invades Privacy

by Harry Brown

There are several ways in which legalization of marijuana is being attempted currently, the most popular being that it is harmless. Cases involving the testimony of doctors, psychologists, sociologists, police officers, and PTA of-officials have been struck down when the government says that its use aggravates hangnails. The validity of legalization will never get anywhere on this basis -- how could one legalize cigarettes or lipstick from this approach? The government doesn't have the burden of proof; the defendant does, and the government can always find some vagary.

But it should be clear that the marijuana law for possession is an invasion of the citizens' privacy, and, therefore, is in violation of his constitutional rights. The right to possess marijuana has been asserted in a brief filed this summer in the Colorado Supreme Court. The ACLV of Colorado intends to have the court rule that classification of marijuana as a narcotic is "medically indefensible and sociologically unwarranted," and the prosecution for its possession is an invasion of privacy. The brief claims that there is no substantial evidence that its prolonged use leads to physical, mental, or moral degradation, and there is no established connection between its use and anti-social conduct. Furthermore, "the imposition of criminal sanctions on the possession and use of marijuana is an unwarranted and unjustifiable denial of man's innate freedom to experiment with his own consciousness as long as he does no harm.

In a recent Supreme Court decision, Stanley vs. Georgia, it was held that the mere private possession of obscene material cannot constitutionally be considered a crime. In this case, a man's house was being legitimately searched by police, who were seeking evidence of book-making activities, and found pornographic films. In defense of the right of privacy, and in accordance with the first amendment, the Court held, "If the first amendment means anything, it means that a state has no business telling a man, sitting alone in his own house, what books he may read, or what films he may watch. Our whole constitutional heritage rebels at the thought of giving the government the power to control men's minds." The Court also added, however, in anticipation of what claims might be made concerning what kind of conduct would now be permissible in the privacy of one's own home, that, "What we have said in no way infringes upon the power of . . . government to make possession of other items, such as narcotics, firearms, or stolen goods a crime."

The courts are obviously very cautious in defining rights of conduct in private. This has always been the case; the right to include marijuana will have to be fought for. The ACLV pointed out also that the state already has sufficient legislation to control any public harms related to marijuana, like selling it, or driving while under its influence" to add as a crime the mere possession is an arbitrary and unjustified invasion of the individual right of privacy."

Since the public welfare regarding the possible hazards of marijuana is not affected by its private use, prohibition of private use is an invalid extension of the state's police power.

The brief further claims that the laws represent cruel and unusual punishment (simple possession of marijuana in Colorado is punishable by fines of up to $10,000, and imprisonment for not less than two years and not more than fifteen years, even for the first offense.) The difference between the seriousness of the crime(?) and the seriousness of the sentence makes it in violation of the eighth amendment.

statement stating that she was too far into drugs to stop now; yet, as one ex-drug user states at the end of the film, "Search for happiness is an expression of heart, not mind."

II. Tuesday night's program included two guest speakers who were well learned in the field of drug abuse, Dr. Carl Nieforth, scientist at the School of Pharmacy at UConn, and Sergeant Tom McDonald of the Connecticut State Police.

Dr. Nieforth stressed upon the effects of marijuana on a person. He stated that the effects of pot is a "learned effect;" in other words, a person sees how other people act when they are "stoned," and thus, acts accordingly when he tries the drug for the first time. He added that two joints generally effect an individual in the same manner that eight ounces of alcohol would. The most detrimental effect of pot is that the user tends to fixate his eyes on one object. The doctor also stated that LSD use has been cut down considerably due to the more abundant supply of "grass."

He concluded his lecture, which was more informal than factual, with the results of three studies that were done on LSD. The first stated that LSD was safe, the second stated that LSD improves driving ability, and the last stated that LSD causes birth defects. He stated, however, that none of the studies done were accepted as scientifically valid on a complete basis. In answer to a question concerning the legalization of marijuana, the doctor stated, "Before legalization, a drug must be proven safe, as well as, efficient."

Sergeant Tom McDonald's lecture, however, proved to be typical and uninteresting. He immediately offended the audience by stating the following sentence: "If you guys could come with me to visit the hospitals, where hundreds of young people are painfully trying to recuperate from strong drug habits, you would go to a barber and stop looking like bums." This presentation was hardly the proper way to address a group of people who were interested in learning the facts about drugs. The narcotics agent, therefore, scored very low in the interest and respect of his listeners.

Mr. McDonald, however, had a copious amount of new methods that he uses in confiscating drugs. The use of a specially trained dog has helped the Connecticut State Police more than the combined efforts of all its narcotics agents. This "crafty canine" has been taught to find drugs in every possible place "No matter how well hidden the dope is" states the sergeant, "he'll find it." What does the dog do when he finds it?--eats it, of course.

Wow! What a waste. III. Wednesday night's program, the last of the three day symposium, presented Dr. Donald Louria, expert on drugs, author of the book entitled "The Drug Scene", and co-author of "Nightmare Drugs." Doctor Louria opened his lecture with the affirmation that he was not a member of the "blaucny establishment," but that he was solely interested in correcting drug abuse, for more deaths are caused by drugs than the combined fatalities of accidents and war.

Since Dr. Louria is extremely interested in the use of LSD he stated the following true facts concerning this drug:

- 1) "LSD, although taken on only 1 occasion, can cause bad recurrences for a period following up to three years after taking the drug. 2) It has been definitely proven that this drug causes chromosomal breakage, as well as chromosomal rearrangements--the former may repair with time, but the latter causes permanent damage.
- 3) Leukemia has also been linked to the use of LSD. 4) Evidence also suggests that LSD can cause other diseases.

In a radio discussion with Timothy Leary, a firm believer in the LSD Philosophy -- Dr. Louria debated the harmful effects of LSD with his most prominent opponent. Dr. Leary rather submissively admitted that LSD can be dangerous, a major contradiction to his previous teachings.

In relation to the pot problem, Dr. Louria told of the dangers of relation to the different reactions that individuals sustain through constant use, "Marijuana," he states, "most often leads to the use of more potent drugs in order to achieve a better 'high'." A user will lose control of the drug when used on more than 10 occasions. There is, however no chromosomal damage through using pot; yet, the difficulties are now being tested more thoroughly.

Dr. Louria concluded his lecture with a reference to the Woodstock Festival. "It has been proved that 45,000 young people were stoned at Woodstock; thus, the peaceful crowd - refrained from damaging property and fighting. Yet, I feel this is a fake interpretation by the festival's officials because a stoned society is not a stable one."

When asked if pot should be legalized, the Doctor answered, "Why add another evil to our society?"

Persky For Council?

Included in Persky's talk will be:

- A proposal to switch the tax burden in Hartford from the individual citizen to big business.
- A plan to reorganize the Board of Education to alleviate the city's racist, unbalanced and overcrowded schools.
- A study which will attempt to isolate and act on the causes of welfare dependency.
- An idea for a revolutionary housing program which would work for the people not the politicians.
- A call to initiate laws which would legalize marijuana in the state...a first realistic step in dealing with narcotic abuse and drug education.
- a critique on how the power structure in Hartford exploits its citizens and how the people can fight it.

Recreation Bomb

The Recreation Committee of the Program Board of Governors had its first meeting on Monday. It was not a success. In a pre-meeting discussion, a lot of enthusiasm was shown, indicating that we might expect some actual accomplishments.

A flyer was distributed to attract more people to the meeting. There were two members of the Recreation Committee, eight or ten supporters of the newspaper, and two people who explained that they were going to work against the newspaper. The committee chairman tried to bring the business of activities and social functions into the discussion, but talk kept turning to the issue of the flyer about the newspaper. Arguments between the newspaper supporters and a group who intended to upset the existing newspaper caused the meeting to completely disintegrate.

The Recreation Committee wonders if it can do anything. It would like to know if it should bother to sponsor any activities at all. If the thrust of the meeting is any indication at all, they will probably decide to quit.

I attended the meeting with the intention of organizing some skiing activities. I had even made preliminary arrangements with American Airlines to provide special student rates for skiing trips. I had no opportunity to propose these ideas because there were no interested students present.

If the Recreation Committee is to function at all, there must be some participation. What should the Recreation Committee do now? I ask this question to the students of the University.

Poem No. 3

*Pools of blood floating by;
Closing the gap of my mind's illusion;
In it, my suckered eye,
The fore runner of death.
The placid mist of my desire;
My tortured mind in a black fire.
The tranquillity of the tampered mind,
Reaching out on a limb of life
With a muffled whisper calling for help.*

*Birds in death rings swoop,
Clawing, grasping, diving, snatching,
Destroying the home where sanity reigned.
Secretly plotting to hypnotize,
To dissect the dwelling that sheltered my mind.*

*Come! drain my desire to live
Steal
my mind's love and leave;
take with you all I have,
My fore runner of death.*

*Impact!
unnerving now
Mind spinning,
Groggy instance.
Open mind holes losing grip;
Losing control,
Slipping.
Envisions of death everywhere lurk.
STABBING
The envision comes true.*

To Everyone Else

to everyone else

*You might see life more clearly,
Find truth and beauty happening,
But if you'd talked to Michael,
You might have learned to dream.*

*You might chase after freedom
And learn the running here;
If you'd remembered Michael,
You know it all through tears.*

*You might make revolutions here
Or do a start on peace,
But if you'd dared love Michael,

The Second Coming

The Second Coming

*When the long-limbed cross-bearer
Roars at the sun
To hide his face in the light
Which blinds,
I shall go among the masters
Of men
And look for leaders.*

*When the light is faint enough
To discern the stones thrown Into the sunken grave
Of the Savior,
It shall be the time for summer.*

Now is the time for summer.

*I am waiting for the ice to choose
To be melted by the fire --
New men shall be sent out
To plow the fields.
The seeds sown by the virgins
Who must die
Will grow to shade
The first autumn
Of the second spring.*

Hardy Returns

Tke, Theta Chi, SAE Win Openers

by Jim Donnally

Shutouts were the hallmark of the opening day intramural football contests. Tau Kappa Epsilon blanked TEP 33-0 while Sigma Alpha Epsilon whitewashed Pi Lambda Phi 14-0. Theta Chi, sparked by the return of editor-brother Jack Hardy, shutout Phi Sigma Kappa, 25-0. Paced by Ed Schwartz and Jeff Davis, the OX rolled for 18 first half points. The second half saw PSK staging a valiant comeback, with outstanding efforts from Mike Ahlers and Bob Stowe. However, Gerry Pavia and Dan Fogel spoiled their bid with three key interceptions. Hardy scored the final point of the game on a five yard conversion run.

The brothers of Tau Kappa Epsilon once again proved that they are the team to beat as they romped over Tau Epsilon Phi 33-0. The fabulous aerial combination of Fred McDonald to Pete Rex clicked for two touchdowns, while QB McDonald ran for seven more points. Also on the receiving end of McDonald's tosses were Tom DeVita and Rick O'Shaughnessey. Outstanding on defense for TKE were Bob Latoracca and Bo Collabella. Earl Vance and Nelson Rabinovitch played brilliantly for the losing TEP cause.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon opened their season by downing Pi Lambda Phi 14-0. SAE quarterback Joe Kubachka connected on touchdown passes with Jeff Cashman and Walt "Rat" Rapp. Kubachka ran over for both extra points. However, it was the tremendous performance of SAE's offensive line that gives them an excellent chance for the intramural football crown. With George Ritchie leading the blocking QB Kubachka had all the time he needed to find his receivers. Look for SAE to be near the top at the end of the season.

Sigma Alpha Mu drew a bye this week since ZBT will not be participating in the Fraternity League. Sammy faces TKE this week in what shapes up to be the big game of the early season.

Football Club Player of the Week:
 Bob Rotundo

Bob Rotundo, always big in his own way, led the Hawks to a 30-6 victory over Rutgers-Newark with 12 tackles. Look for "Tundo" to be a "large" factor in next Friday's game with New Haven College.

Intramural Player of the Week:
 D. Peter Rex (TKE)

Peter Rex, after one week, is in his usual place—leading the league scoring. Last year he was a member of the I.F.C. all-star team and lead the league in scoring. He has been Player of the Week many times before.

Sports Car Rallye

Sunday, September 28, the U of H sports car club conducted its second Rallye of the season, "The Numbers Game." Rallyemaster Ron Berle sent twenty-nine cars through Avon, West Hartford, and Compensating Reservoir #6, looking for numbers and signs, and attempting to stay on course.

Three to four hours later, found the Rallyists recuperating at Avon Grill and Restaurant waiting for the results to be announced. First place went to the team of Clark Smidt/Tom Klimaski in a mustang; Connie Hall/Bom Ramette in a Charger took Second Place; and the Buick driven by Hal and Judy Mandy came home third. The Horse's Rear "Tail Enders" award went to Joe Plasek/Debbie Dowlen, in a Sprite; and Chris Brindley/Mike Joy, in a Mustang received a special award for not executing instruction #33.

On a side bet, Jim Donnelly/Tony Grockowski, Chevrolet, won a case of beer from Julie Meutch/Gine Welles, VW, for Beating the girls by 70 points.

The club's next event is the "Goodbye Columbus" Rallye October 12. For Details call Rallyemaster Ken Roskin 233-5045, or Club President Mike Joy 523-1733.

Hawks Down Rutgers In Opener, 30-6

WITH Russ Pottle

The UHa football club displayed a well balanced attack in beating the team from Rutgers of Newark last Saturday in New Jersey. It was the first game of the season for the Hawks and the first game ever for the newly formed Rutgers squad.

Over one hundred Hartford rooters were treated to a devastating running game featuring Dave Smith, Jack Jenkins, Rely Nadler, and Mark Adams, and a stingy defense which didn't give up a score until the final three minutes of the game.

Offensively, the Hawks were unstoppable. They scored once in each period with first-year end, Tom Sanders, contributing fourteen points.

Mark Adams started at quarterback and hit Sanders with a 25 yard pass in the second quarter for the second TD of the game. Admas also recorded the third touchdown of the day on a keeper from three yards out.

The tempo of the game was fast as both teams hit hard and tempers flared on many occasions.

The first break for the Hawks came after their first series of downs. Unable to move, they were forced to punt, but defensive back, Paul Britto, raced downfield and hit deep receiver, Nat Johnson, just as he touched the ball, causing him to fumble. Hartford tackle, Paul Rowean, fell on it and the Hawks took possession at the Raiders' twenty.

Jenkins, Smith, and Nadler, worked the ball down to the goal line with Nadler finally going over from the three. Adams pass for the extra points fell incomplete, but the Hawks had a 6-0 lead.

Throughout the contest the Hartford defense was strong and gave up yardage very grudgingly. Continually the Raiders found themselves running three plays and having to punt. The furthest Rutgers was able to penetrate in the first half was to the Hartford 25, but there the defense forced a fumble which lineman Desmond Leahy fell on for the Hawks.

Hartford returned strong after half-time and scored on its first set of downs. The drive found Mark Adams picking up twenty-five yards on two running plays to the home team's twenty. The Hawks inched their way in and Adams went over from the three. Quarterback Bob Jurist came in for the extra points try and hit end Tom Sanders in the end zone for the conversion and an insurmountable 22-0 lead.

In the fourth quarter the hometown Raiders fought desperately to get on the scoreboard, but the Hawk secondary, led by Mark Greenberg, Henry Naploeon, and Paul Britto, was everywhere, tackling outside runners and deflecting passes.

Rutgers finally did score on an eighteen yard pass play from quarterback Frank Louie to tight-end Jim Phipps. But by this time Coach Worth was freely substituting and the game had long since been decided.

Hartford had scored its final touchdown a few minutes earlier on an eight yard Jurist to Sanders pass. The conversion was good on a freak play which found tackle Joe Morley catching a deflected Jurist pass.

The final score was a decisive 30-6. The football club's second contest and first home clash of the season will be next Friday night (Oct. 3) at Dillon Stadium at 8 o'clock against the much improved New Haven College club.

Rambling On

WITH Russ Pottle

You missed a great game if you weren't in Newark last Saturday. The Hawks were tough all the way. It was refreshing to see such a good contingent from Hartford there. Our cheerleading squad, as much as some people knock them, really put the Raiders' girls to shame.

St. Benedict's Field, where the game was played, is about as poor a football field as you'll ever find. If you ask me, maybe we should offer it back to the good Saint.

And the locker room is really bad news. I mean what good are three showers? That's enough for Bob Rotondo, but what is everyone else supposed to do.

The soccer team is putting out a pretty sharp program this year. I don't know if they'll be handed out, but if you get ahold of one be sure to look at the team's records. They're pretty interesting.

The soccer team plays its first home match next Tuesday afternoon against Bates College. The contests are held in the field behind the gym. The team is vastly improved this season and the boys always give 100% all the way so try to get aside time next Tues. to get down there and cheer the soccer Hawks to victory.

Last Wednesday, Coach Gordon McCullough greeted seventeen candidates who will be vying for a spot on this year's basketball team. Led by co-captains Larry Franciose and Dave Brunelle, the team will be trying to better last year's "best ever" 17-7 record.

Informal practices have already begun and the boys can be seen practicing any afternoon after 3:00.

Coach McCullough hopes to bring the squad down to twelve or thirteen men, but more on this later.

Soccer Team Falls To WPI

by C. Gibson

The U of H Soccer team opened its season Saturday with a game against WPI, and came back with a resounding 5-0 defeat. It was a rather dismal beginning for a team whose prospects seemed so promising. There was no doubt that the Hawks were far outclassed with both offense and defense being remarkably disorganized. But despite this disappointing setback, there still may be cause for optimism. Several of the players did play an excellent game, particularly Andy Nikin, Bill Stockbridge, and Steve Karameinis. A good effort was also put forth by Mike Yavner and Rich O'Shaughnessy. Even the three goalies did a creditable job, if you disregard the five goals.

But the main problem was obviously a lack of communication. When a player scores against his own team, and the team starts the half with too many players on the field, it's clear that somebody isn't getting through to somebody. One inexcusable difficulty was the lack of team work, the main reason for the poor offense.

After the game Coach Pastor tried to explain the loss. He agreed that there were communication problems, which he feels are due to the inexperience of the team. There is not a single senior on the team, and half are freshmen. He feels that there is a great deal of skill and potential to be developed, but until the players learn to talk among themselves he fears that they will be plagued with injuries, as they were in the last game, and unable to work together. The coach finds that it is difficult to work with players, many of whom, he says "don't WANT to cooperate...charging all the work to some," and making little effort themselves.

The Soccer team is fortunate in having an excellent coach who seems to be as concerned with the players safety, and that they enjoy the game, as with winning. But a few good players can't comprise the whole team. There doesn't seem to be much chance of them having a spectacular winning season, but if they can rid themselves of the internal disorders holding them back, the only way they can go is up.

S.A. Notes

TO THE STUDENT BODY:

I feel it is time you became aware of what YOUR student government is doing. The S.A. is suppose to be representative of the U of H community; however, approximately three fourths of the student body is totally uniformed of what the S.A. is doing. So that you WILL know what the S.A. does I will place the minutes of each S.A. meeting in the newspaper. Thus it remains your responsibility to get involved and voice your opinions, and this can be done at the S.A. meetings Tuesday at 10:00. (This also means the S.A. Senators)

SDS Sues

by Harry Brown

Senate investigation of campus disorders may be heading for a setback if a suit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) in defense of the rights of the Columbia University chapter of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) is successful.

Subpoenas have been issued by the Senate Permanent Sub-committee on Investigations to Stanford, Harvard, Cornell, Berkeley, and CCNY, as well as Columbia, requiring the universities to supply the names of all officers and faculty advisors of all campus organizations and to state how much federal assistance is being granted to them. The subpoena for Columbia also requires the records that identify all persons involved in the takeover of the university last year.

The political affiliation of the SDS members should be protected under the First Amendment. Also, the SDS claims that the investigations could not possibly serve any legislative purpose since no constitutionally valid legislation could be made, excluding federal aid or scholarships to people because of their involvement with campus political organizations or their convictions for illegal activities on campus. The CCNY faculty senate adopted a resolution declaring the CCNY subpoena was "intimidating and inhibiting."

Similar suits will be appealed on behalf of the faculty senate of the City University and City College of New York and nine individual professors.

Conspiracy In Chicago

by M. Hazelton

More than a year has passed since Lyndon Johnson and Dick Daley manipulated and cheated the Democratic National Convention of Gene McCarthy and the peace platform clearly supported at state and local levels. The young people and the Democrats who realized that the Convention was rigged were in the streets of Chicago being attacked by Mayor Daley's Pigs. A few months later the National Commission On the Causes and Prevention of Violence charged and substantiated that the police attacked "peaceful demonstrators, innocent bystanders, newsmen, photographers, and Chicago citizens in a ferocious, malicious and mindless manner" that amounted to "what can only be called a police riot." This is the background of the "Conspiracy 8" trial which began last Wednesday in Chicago Eight leaders of the anti-war, anti-racism movement who represent the entire spectrum of American dissent in the past decade are charged with conspiring to promote a riot at the 1968 Democratic Convention. The defendants range from pacifist David Dellinger, 53, to white radicals Tom Hayden, Rennie Davis, Lee Weiner and John Froines; cultural revolutionaries Jerry Rubin and Abbie Hoffman, and Black Panther chairman Bobby Seale. The possibility of these men obtaining justice in a Federal Court in Chicago is virtually non-existent. The outcome of the trial is at least as rigged as the Democratic Convention.

To March Or Not to March

"Are you marching October 15th?" This question brought many different responses, not all of them favorable. One answer I received was, "The 15th? Wasn't that the anniversary of Castro's takeover in Cuba, or Che Guevara's death, or something as radical as that?" Believe me, it's not all that radical. The 15th is simply a date to remind people that every day Americans are fighting and dying in Vietnam. On the 15th, concerned students and residents of the greater Hartford area plan to march from UHa to downtown Hartford to focus attention on the fact that, although numerous campaign promises were made, the election is over and no results have been forthcoming. This march should show the powers in Washington that no one wants this war, and that they should get off their dead asses and do something about stopping it.

I have asked many people if they are marching, and the usual answer is, "I'd like to, but..." You people are afraid to become involved. You think this march will turn into another Chicago, with police brutality and hippie, extremist, radical, Communist inspired fanatics taking over G. Fox's and turning it into a people's park. Don't be alarmed. The entire march has been approved by the city of Hartford. We won't even be doing any street fighting, so you can wear your good clothes. Everything is legal and above board, and parade routes will be posted well in advance of the march so everyone will know what's happening.

Some of the responses I received to my question were fantastic. "I'm sympathetic, but if I march, the federal government will cancel by student loan." How are they going to pick you out of 5000 marching people? "Well, if anyone sees me marching, and turns my name in to the school, I'm done for." This is a legitimate excuse, and could be solved in either of two ways: 1. You could wear a bag over your head (preferably plastic), or 2. You could stay home and hide under the bed. Don't be ashamed to protest the Vietnam war (unless, of course, your family fortune is founded on napalm).

Another response I received frequently was, "Will there be many girls/guys there?" (pick one according to your preference.) The answer is, "Hell, yes!" Sex is no prerequisite for hating war. "There will definitely be representatives of both sexes present at all times." (direct quote from Alan MacMillan, staff writer for the liberated press.) Other schools marching with UHa will include: UCONN Hartford Branch, Trinity, Manchester Community College, and Hartford College for Women.

Remember October 15th, and do your part to help end the war in Vietnam.

PAX

Presiding over the trial is Judge Julius J. Hoffman, 74-years-old. The first day of the trial, Judge Hoffman proclaimed, "We do things very punctually in my court." Judge Hoffman is so concerned with punctuality that he has denied the defense a postponement so that Charles R. Garry, who has often represented Panthers, can recover from an operation on his gall bladder. Commenting on the fact that his defense is being unfairly hampered by Mr. Garry's absence, Bobby Seale told the judge, "If my constitutional rights are denied, I can only say that the judge is a blatant racist." (right on.) Judge Hoffman in an act to "intimidate and harass" lawyers. Two of these lawyers, Gerald Lefcourt and Michael Tigar, who had only been retained to file pre-trial motives had notified Judge Hoffman by telegram that they were withdrawing from the case as they are working on the defense of the 21 Black Panthers being tried in New York City. But Hoffman had them arrested and held without bail over the weekend in the Chicago jail. This sort of police state repression gives some indication of the judge's concern for justice.

Bobby Seale and Jerry Rubin were driven from the West Coast to Chicago in separate cars. The trip took six days and all the while, they were handcuffed, with chains around their stomachs and shackles on both legs. They were kept incommunicado so that their lawyers were unable to effectively prepare their defense. Why is the Federal government so determined to rig this trial?

The defendants are being tried under Sections 2101-2 of Chapter 102 of the Civil Rights Act of 1968. The anti-riot provisions they are accused of violating were tacked on as a rider to the 1968 Civil Rights by Strom Thurmond, the man who gave President Nixon the electoral votes of the Southern states. This is the first case to be tried under this repressive law and as a Civil Liberties Union official says, it is "probably the most important political trial in the history of the United States." The crucial issue is that of the clear violation of our First Amendment freedom to travel and express views to bring about social change.

Sections 2101-2 prohibits interstate travel with the intent to incite to riot. The frightening implications of this trial are that, if not invalidated, this law may become a very easy method to justify further police riots and imprisonment of those who protest that America has strayed from her ideals of liberty, equality and representative, responsive government. It is clear that what was started by Johnson and Daley in the streets of Chicago is being continued by Nixon and Attorney General Mitchell. It must be stopped.

FOR MAYOR

JONATHAN BRUCE '89

Agitate, Educate, Liberate

The candle of our hope has been lit. People-hood lies waiting in the distance. Along with our dreams. Along with our hopes. Give us just one man. A man of truth. A man of vision. He can make the changes. Put your faith and trust in Wilber.

We all are familiar with Wilber Smith. The same Wilber Smith who led the most progressive NAACP in Hartford history. He may be recognized as a leader. He may be called our friend. Nobody's fool and nobody's puppet. Give us the strength to make him mayor.

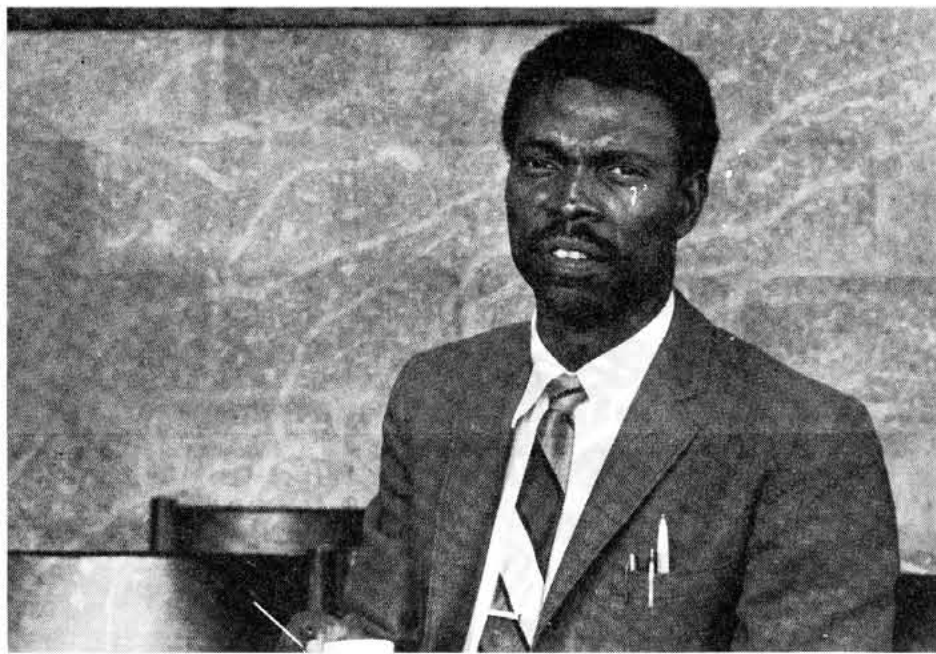

We must fulfill our responsibilities. We must shelve our apathy. The bandwagon waits for us to climb aboard. Let us join in and raise our voices high.

Those of us who are eligible must register and vote. We can no longer remain passive. We must divorce ourselves from the whims of the system. We must free our minds. For the system is what keeps us oppressed. That which denies us the tools of liberation.

We must smash the monster of oppression. We must drag its tail and pull it down. For we are the children of a new age. Wilber Smith is our vehicle of a new love. A love of dignity, honesty, truth and light. A love whose majesty will change the world.

Now is the time. Get out and vote! Wilber is the way. Our savior. The fulfillment of our dream. We must win the war. We must agitate, educate and liberate. Liberation from oppression, lack-love politics and fear. We must win the war. Or we shall be destroyed. Get out and join the dance. Clenching our fists together. Do it today. Do it now!

ANGELO

Smith for Mayor of Hartford

There is a cruel hoax now being perpetrated on the general public. We have had a deputy mayor attempting to upstage a vacationing opponent, using the tragic results of the conditions of our times to gain possible votes in the upcoming election.

You have a mayor who has really been on vacation for two years, struggling to regain the reins of status quo power.

And on the night before, we had political vacillation and delay on the part of the Council and its administration in dealing rapidly and decisively on the urgent situation. Seemingly, it was as if others intended to help in the past decade or more.

Ironically, it took the surface results of frustration, despair and hatred, in the form of senseless destruction arising out of hate and discontent to prove, that no revision of a city charter is necessary for a mayor to assert leadership.

It took this kind of civil disorder to prove that the City Council can take action when and if the members thereof desire, and that they CAN direct the City Manager to do what they desire of him.

The resolution calling upon judges to see first hand the damage that has been done -- before meting out punishment on those found guilty of committing wrongful acts -- should and must be amended to include visiting the squalor in which the majority of our non-white citizenry have been forced to live. Perhaps these judges will begin meting out stiffer punishment to the slumlords and their private counseling prosecutors in our local circuit courts.

None of us can condone the tragic acts and results of any riot. Whether it be here or in Northern Ireland. But those of us who truly deplore riots must come to recognize that they are forms of expressions of hate brought on by other expressions of hate -- poverty, frustration and the despairing feeling of rejection by the total society -- and we must also have the courage and wisdom to angrily confront those hatreds as well.

I'd like to take this opportunity -- not to campaign for votes, but to call upon all of our citizens, regardless of color or religion, to open up the legal and legislative avenues, and riots will disappear.

Wilber G. Smith

Ann Uccello- Diplomat or Fool

This November, the Republican Incumbent, for the Mayoralty race is Ann Uccello. Actively involved in politics since 1963, (Common Council 1963-1965 and Mayor since 1967), we must let Miss Uccello's record speak for itself.

The issue of education is a typical example of Miss Uccello's two-faced attitude. On September 27, 1968, Arthur Brouillet, President of the Hartford Federation of Teachers accused the Uccello administration of "consistently applying a meat cleaver to the school budget." When it had been discovered that $800,000 had been cut out of the school budget, Miss Uccello supported a $200,000 restoration of funds. Although she stood steadfastly opposed to the restoration of $600,000 to the school budget, ($400,000 of which was necessary for maintenance and equipment), Miss Uccello, apparently in good conscience considered herself a "fervent supporter" of education. This prompted Brouillet to state that "overcrowded, inadequate facility(s) stand as a mute testimony to her (Uccello's) voting record...The harsh truth is that the city is suffering greatly in many areas from the inadequate leadership of our Mayor."

Miss Uccello consistently refuses to respond to the needs and sensitivities of poor people in Hartford. She was naive enough, on the night of Martin Luther King's assassination, to carry rosary beads as a "secret weapon" during her confrontation with leaders of the Black Caucus on June 4, 1968.

Twelve days later on June 16, 1968, Miss Uccello was present at the US Conference of Mayors. When the conference adopted a resolution favoring a federally guaranteed minimum annual income for poor people, the Resolution was finally passed during the second vote. Ann Uccello voted against the resolution both times.

Indeed, it may be said in all seriousness that the most important legislation during the Uccello regime has been the legislation for improved street lighting. She has consistently shown a reluctance to relate to the needs of the urban constituency she purports to represent. She is unworthy to be mayor, indeed, unworthy to be Councilman. We urge that she be defeated in the race for Mayor in September. The issue is crystal clear.

If street lights are more important than poor people; if politics is more important than education; then it stands to reason that the politics of oppression is more important than the politics of humanity, of justice. We must deal with the tiger of oppression. Ann Uccello must be defeated.

George B. Kinsella- The Get-Tough-on- Rioters Campaign

At the present time, the Deputy Mayor of Hartford is George B. Kinsella. He is interested in the concepts of law and order as opposed to peace and freedom. He advocates that the only way to approach the "problem" of riots is to "deal severely" with those responsible for the disturbances in the city. We submit that "those responsible" for the disturbances are the inept and corrupt officials controlling the decadent structure of Hartford politics. We submit that George Kinsella is one of those responsible.

Running on the platform of community renewal, George Kinsella was elected to the office of Mayor in 1965. However, it is clear that the only effective "community renewal" program of his administration was a plan to build a park in the city's South End. For this he was criticized by Rep. Leonard G. Frazier who stated that any new housing or community renewal project should be undertaken in the North End. First priority should be given to the Black Community of Hartford.

Racism. The issue is racism. Conscious or unconscious, overt or covert, this racism runs consistently through the mainstream of George Kinsella's political life. This is crystal clear.

As on August 14, 1966, when, as Mayor, Kinsella suggested that Hartford build some of its new schools in the suburbs and send city children to be educated in them. Thus efficiently ignoring the problems of urban education. Expecting urban blacks and whites to relate to the racist nature of the suburbs. Leaving the people in the slums.

This is the same man responsible for a low and order approach to riots in Hartford. Who has vowed to "get-tough" on rioters and "deal severely" with this responsible.

This is the same man who accused black militants of forcing white businessmen to leave the North End. This statement was called a "blatant appeal to racism" by Glenda L. Copes of the Hartford NAACP. Repeatedly asked for evidence and "documented reports" he claimed to have, Kinsella had no response but to keep on making libelous and racist allegations. Representative Frazier stated that Kinsella should "put up or shut up." This is the nature of the man.

We urge you to examine the issues, the facts. Is this not the same man who, upon asking the Mayor about her views on the city budget, was told that he would know her views if he had attended at least one of the five budget meetings with councilmen and city manager Friedman. Is this not the same man who on September 4, 1947, was arrested on an alleged theft of automobile accessories? We submit to you that it is the same man. The same irresponsible harbinger of inefficient and inept bureaucracy the city of Hartford has ever known. His election must not become a reality. His campaign should serve as a reminder of a stagnant past and not of a free, flowing future of liberation.

Wilbur G. Smith, Liberal Party Candidate for Mayor of Hartford

We are supposedly a nation founded under God and the principles of the dignity of the individual. We the people have been caught up in a frenzy of an economic boom, that despite the inscription on our dollar bill, "In God We Trust," we find that in our nation and throughout the world, we are trusting more in the dollar bill.

In the same light, we are a nation caught up in a frenzy of seeking status. If we are indeed a nation founded under God, then only by maintaining those principles can we achieve our stated principal goals. And that is, the dignity of the human character -- without regard to party affiliation; without regard to nationality, race, religion, sex or age.

The strength of any government, regardless of the system, is based on the concern and involvement of a people who are truly concerned.

A French philosopher whose name I cannot pronounce said in his Spirit of Laws in 1748 that, "The tyranny of a prince in an oligarchy is not so dangerous to the public welfare as the apathy of a citizen in a democracy."

Now, what is written on paper can only be put to action by individuals. There is no basic difference today in a person solely because of his or her party affiliation, solely because of his or her race or religion, nor by the amounts of monies their political parties can accrue to sell themselves to you, the voter.

Our party, the Liberal Party, which we have chosen as our designation, stands for justice for all the people -- not solely the middle class, not solely the working man, but includes the elderly who can no longer work, the young people who are torn between what is preached and what is practiced in our society.

Rather than talk about generalities, let us be specific. There is nothing corrupt about politics today that house-cleaning by young people like yourselves cannot change. You must look beyond the stated and written platforms of parties that are written by experts, not the individuals who are carrying the lead. But are written by experts in order to sell their product to you.

Our platform is deeply rooted in this concept and this concept, alone: that, "Except the Lord build the house, they who build it labor in vain. Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh in vain."

I'm not here to preach to you, but I'm here to say to you that the character of your candidate -- getting away from the so-called separation of church and state, which simply means that the state does not dictate to the religious beliefs of an individual -- but that if we indeed believe in God and the dignity of man, then how can we shed our religious principles and allow for the cruel treatment and the conditions to which all of our people are relegated.

Our party, the Liberal Party, stands for and has been actively involved in accomplishing the things for which both the political parties claim they stand.

You must become cognizant of how political parties fail and how individuals who are dedicated and concerned and untied to political organizations, untied to obligations of the past -- with courage and vision can make a change -- not only in this city, but in cities throughout this nation.

Instead of a questionnaire, we propose a list of questions that elicit a true response from the applicant. With these questions we would be able to assure you that the watchman on the street will be giving you the best performance to his ability and our judgment.

EDITOR: When you last spoke at the University a few weeks ago somebody asked you how the so called civil disturbances could be stopped and you said that they couldn't because they were related to the conditions in the atmosphere. How would you describe the conditions in the atmosphere right now, after the disturbances right before the elections?

MR. SMITH: It's getting cool now and basically I consider that weather plays a hell of a part in the attitudes of people and pent up frustrations that people have. During the winter a lot of the people are not on the streets and you don't have the congestions and you lessen the possibilities that police are going to yell at you for loitering on the street. So automatically in the wintertime, the things that would normally set you off are removed by nature. If during the winter we do not change the atmosphere of city hall and in the city toward the non enforcement of the codes where people begin to see during peace that the law is good and willing to do what is just, then this means another winter of feeling and remembering the summer and the promises and what happened before. And to have time while you're freezing and paying that high rent and looking at those roaches crawling up the wall and try to board up the holes that those rats come in, only to move into another summer of having stood still and gone backwards and then to be run out on the streets because of the heat of the summer, only to have the watchmen tell you to move and something else starts up again. Plus we are having more children from the previous generation eating lead paint. With all of these things, how do you remove the prospect of youngsters growing up in a ghetto and who are ultimately going to suffer from brain damage? How do you do that? You enforce the laws. All of the riots in America which they call race riots are a rebellion of human beings against other human beings because of oppression.

EDITOR: In every urban community that has ghettos and has black people there is this problem of communication to say the least between the tenant and the landlord. I have spoken to 4 or 5 people who are actually faced with the problem of eviction a) because they are Black or b) because they have long hair. I'd like you to comment on that.

MR. SMITH: Basically this problem of communication between landlord and tenant, there doesn't have to be communication because most of the landlords that we've come in contact with aren't necessarily interested in communication with tenants, they're interested in getting the money, for the rent. There needs to be an educational kind of thing, to advise people that 1) that laws do exist 2) you have rights and the avenues which you must take 3) a landlord's responsibility. I propose that the landlords must submit a certificate of occupancy, that is to say that before any landlord rents a building it be inspected fully like they do for businessmen opening a store. Thereby when he passes inspection and is given the certificate, there will be no doubt that the house is fit for occupancy. And any damage done after renting will be the tenant's fault without any doubt.

EDITOR: I was interested in your success in getting whites involved in your campaign.

MR. SMITH: We have many whites involved in the campaign. They are from all over, the suburbs, college campuses of course, and the high schools. Many people of the western parts of the city and some are from the southend. I think that I am going to have a tough time convincing the people that they need a change because of habits. I'm not going to say that I have the Black vote sewn up, but those people will vote for me because I am Black. And if that happens I will feel that I have failed to educate the people. You see that has been the problem with the past elections. People were not voting because certain people were qualified but because of what ethnic group they belong to, and their race and this has never gotten the people anywhere.

EDITOR: Do you have a final message for the people of Hartford? And could you tell them where they could reach you if they wanted to help you?

MR. SMITH: My final message to the people is to register. Then pay attention to the issues and the candidates and then vote from one's heart and mind rather than from fear and suspicion. Then on November the 4th VOTE! If anyone wishes to contribute to our campaign fund they may simply address it to Smith for Mayor and send it to the Connecticut Bank and Trust Company Terraceburg Branch in Hartford and of course calling our headquarters which is 243-0067.

EDITOR: THE BEST OF LUCK TO YOU!!!

The Adinolfi Campaign- Mrs. Clinton for Board of Education

The Democratic candidate for mayor of Hartford, is Joseph Adinolfi. He is an attorney and is associated with the law firm of Schatz and Schatz on Main Street in Hartford.

He is presently running on a platform of "regionalism" which, he says, is "firmly convinced... will produce economies and efficiencies." Since we are quite sure that, by regionalism, Adinolfi does not mean "community control," we must summarize his intent by stating that "regionalism" is a catch-all phrase implying the concept of states rights. Government by the majority of a region without regard for the minority. And we are all aware of what this means.

In line with the basic racist state's rights philosophy, Adinolfi is also concerned with law and order. As stated, Adinolfi promises to "...work with the manager, the police chief and the council to organize a program to get more of our policemen on patrol in our neighborhoods." Another effort to reinforce the police-state and keep our brothers and sisters in chains. Where is the end to oppression?

We may be assured, if Adinolfi is elected, the major gist of his program will be to prosecute delinquent tax-payers. We may be further assured that Adinolfi will act from his disturbance "by the rise in crime, particularly crimes of violence. Our first goal must be to make our neighborhood and streets safe."

Do not be fooled, brothers and sisters. This man is concerned with oppression. The mechanics of this oppression is increase in repressive tactics and an attempt to inflict subservience. This is done by increasing the number of police and throwing our people in jail.

The answer is in community control. The answer is communication. We submit that Adinolfi's repressive politics make him unable for the cadeglorly of servant to the people. The people must not be kept in line; the people must be set free. Give the people up unto themselves.

Mrs. Clinton for Board of Education

In this corner, we have Marcia Williams Clinton, the mother who "threw her bonnet into the ring." The ring is the candidacy for Hartford's Board of Education.

Concerned as a mother about the welfare of her children, Marcia was very active in school affairs during the recent disturbances at Weaver High School, and participated on several related committees.

Marcia has had a varied background in her experiences with young people, including the mentally and emotionally disturbed. She has worked at several nursery schools in Hartford and West Hartford, the New Britain Child Guidance Clinic, the King Philips School for Mental Health Association for mentally ill children, and Dr. Goldstein's private clinic.

Included in her platform are plans for more parental involvement in educational decisions; better communication among parents, teachers, students, and administrators; more good guidance counselors and social workers with neighborhood people trained to aid them; more psychiatric help (for students); enough books and adequate equipment for all children; and an examination of budget and programs to find most efficient and effective means of carrying out the above priorities.

Marcia is giving an informal speech at the University of Hartford, Wednesday, October 1, 1969, at 3:30 p.m., in Room F of the Gengras Campus Center.

Maribeth Harper

Question For Adinolfi

QUESTION: Mr. Adinolfi and the other candidates, these people have read and we have read all our lives that the Democrats stand for certain things and the Republicans stand for certain things, just in a couple of sentences could you, and I realize that this is quite a challenge for any party follower, define the Democratic party. In other words you told us what the platform is but generally, what does the Democratic Party aspire to do for those who don't know the difference between the Democratic and Republican parties. Could you do that Senator do you think?

ANSWER: That's a very tall order but I'll do my best. The Democratic party in my opinion aspires to accomplish those programs which will be of maximum benefit to the majority of the people. I think that it has set its sights for the mass of people, that is from the middle class people through to the working class people. It has espoused the cause of workmens compensation, medicare and all those programs that tend to help the majority of the people and does not aim to help those people who are in the upper brackets. It takes into consideration the working man and the middle income group.

An Interview With Wilbur Smith

EDITOR: Mr. Smith, one of the things that I am dubious about as to your campaign is if you do achieve the office of Mayor, do you actually think that you will be able to exercise any kind of power in doing the things you want to do?

ANSWER: Let me say that it is not really a question of exercising any type of power. The question is whether or not a mayor has the ability to be concerned and the courage to do what the charter will allow that person to do as a mayor. For example, you heard much to do about the ceremonial post and many of the present people who have held the post before, like Mayor Uccello who is in it now for the past two years, and Deputy Mayor Kinsella who is now running as an independant saying that he wants to be Hartford's first strong mayor in the last 24 years. While this is a hoax that has been perpetrated on the public a revision in the charter that calls for a separate election of the Mayor, means nothing. The city Manager under the so-called new charter will still be the chief-executive officer of the city who will make all the appointments of department heads. The mayor is supposedly still the ceremonial post except however the charter never did restrict the mayor to ceremony only. So while it still calls for the mayor to take part in representing the city in ceremonies, it does not restrict that mayor to that position. The ceremonial position of the mayor has been used as a crutch for people who have no courage, no vision, and no initiative about them.

EDITOR: How much of Ann Uccello do you think is hidden behind this thing, this ceremonial office? How much does she use as an excuse for not doing anything?

MR. SMITH: For the past two years this is all she's done. For example note that it's election time, and this again shows you lack of leadership, I'm positively sure that it was her backers who thought up the idea for to introduce the resolution to the City Council an ordinance dealing with the paint peeling situation where the Health Department discovered that over 100 of the youngsters were suffering from brain damage or lead paint poisoning. The resolution was to improve the conditions. But the council discovered suddenly that one George Ritter had introduced the same proposal a year ago and the problem arose as to whose resolution would be passed. Was it to be the Mayors or George Ritters? But no one is now concerned with the children who are suffering.

EDITOR: Would you say that the press has been guilty of not taking your candidacy seriously.

MR. SMITH: This is true and I don't know what we can really do about it except have our people contact the heads of the news media. It is true that from time to time they have called me the Black Liberal Party Candidate without racially indentifying the others. I was even labeled the North End candidate for mayor and Ann Uccello lives right around the corner from me so if I was that then so was she. But we appear to be getting around that, because it does cause a problem.

EDITOR: If you had to make a label for yourself what would you use?

MR. SMITH: I am the Liberal Party Candidate for Mayor of Hartford.

EDITOR: Just what does the Liberal Party mean?

MR. SMITH: Number one we had to designate a party by state law to go on the ballot. Basically it stands for being a hell of a lot more liberal, but what we mean by Liberal is being more just, than the other parties and the other candidates. What our Liberal Party stands for is in taking action to move the people in office into taking action to carry out the existing laws. In other words making Hartford a better place to live in and using the monies of the office for just that purpose.

EDITOR: Some of the candidates seem to think that the riots in Hartford could be stopped by a "get tougher" riot policy. I'd like to hear your comment on that.

MR. SMITH: These people are naive and I don't think that they themselves believe it. This is a paradox. I think these people know what the fears are, they've built up a wall of fear of suspicion and distrust between the races and ethnic groups. This has become the stand to take if you want to be successful and elected. With the graft going on between the politicians and the labor unions and pedlers, this is success to them and the public doesn't see all of this but most certainly it is happening. Therefore the so called "get tough" phrase will only result in increased tensions and possibly more riots and larger riots, and only propel them even higher.

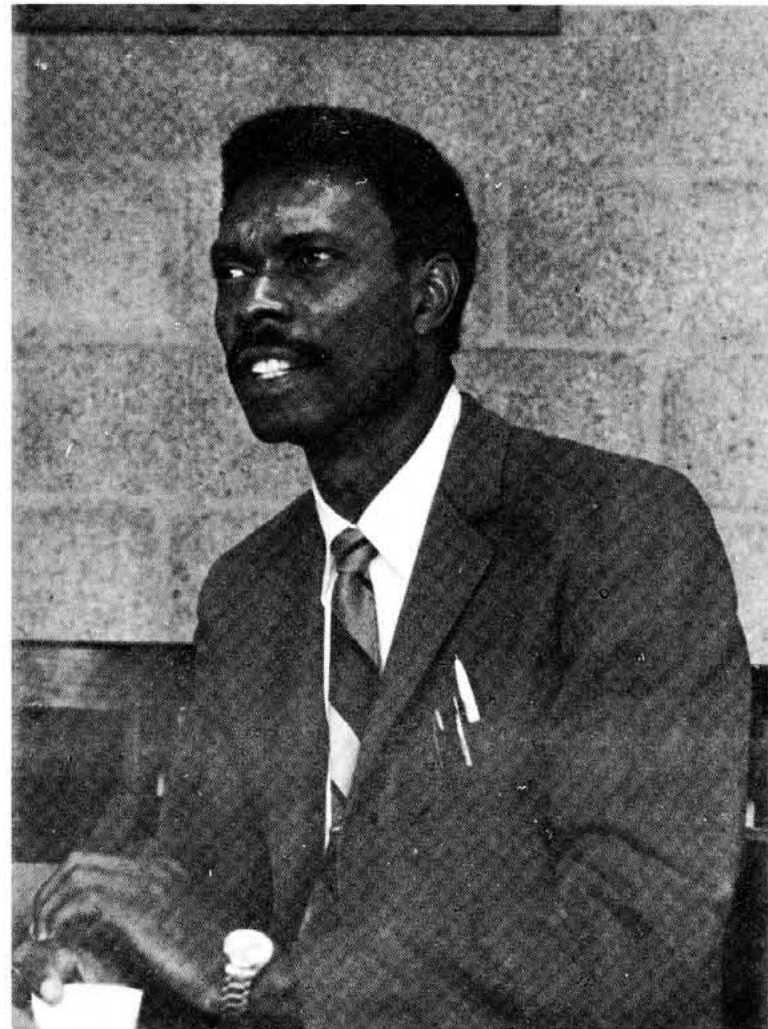

EDITOR: Is there any way you see of stoping the conditions? What do you think are the conditions that start a riot?

MR. SMITH: We have to look at the conjection, we have to look at the conditions. If you were to examine some of the uncontrollable youngsters in our community, in the ghetto, you would find that some of these youngsters may be suffering from brain damage from having consumed this lead based paint. The other thing is the conjected schools that we have, the conjected communities, the high rents that are being paid by the people the non enforcement of those laws that automatically and naturally would result in disrespect for law.

EDITOR: I would like your comment on last year in Hartford about the misunderstandings between Weaver High School and the School Board and student newspaper which Marcus Manzell ran. I'd like you to comment on the School Board.

MR. SMITH: The school Board is a political creature and subject to the whims of that majority that Mr. Adinolfi has already stated his intentions of going after and his belief that those are the people that must be satisfied. We would assume that this is the same judgement, and opinion of the people who also operate the School Board. As to the paper that Marc Manzell ran, there was supposedly a lot of opposition not to the passing out of the article, but they claimed that it was obscene and racist, which was basically a lie. The fact is that he was never dismissed from school nor any of the youngsters with him, on the grounds that the paper was obscene and racist. He was dismissed supposedly for violating the principal's order forbidding its passing out on school grounds. He was also unjustly dismissed on those grounds because in order to support what the principal did, the School Board had to find something in their rules and regulation covering the principal's actions. So they came up with a board policy that stated that no employee or no commercial or sectarian organization or salesman could distribute or sell the product on school ground. But he was neither. It was done because the Board of Education was pressured by school Teachers.

EDITOR: I heard you make a statement during your campaign that you would like to coordinate the police into the affairs of the community. I would like to know how you intend to do that?

MR. SMITH: The police department in their meager efforts, by the police department I mean the City Administration not the patrolmen and officers, to mislead the public or if we believe them, they have submitted a request to the Federal Government for funds to allow them to hire community workers who will be trained in police procedures to learn all about the police department. People who live in the who then can relate the so called problems of the police and in turn relate the problems of the community back to the police. Instead of going to the Federal Government, I'm saying utilize the resources we now have. And in this sense you could save the taxpayers 175 thousand dollars if we were to assume that the Federal Government was going to approve the grant. When you talk about police-community relations, your talking about being honest and open to the public. We are calling for Psychiatric treatment to see how much hostility is being vented through the job of a policeman.
